Building and Maintaining Internet Information Services R. David Lankes.1998 This study addresses the problem of Internet information services having to meet the increasing information demands of users in the dynamic Internet environment. The purpose of this research was to use K-12 digital reference services as a starting point to better understand the process of building and maintaining Internet information services. The study has three specific objectives: (1) to build and apply a conceptual framework based on complexity research, literature, and the researcher's experience; (2) to use this conceptual framework to empirically describe how organizations, specifically K-12 digital reference services, build and maintain services in the dynamic Internet environment; and (3) to seek commonalties across these descriptions. Qualitative methods (elite interviews and document analysis) were used to elicit descriptions of six exemplary K-12 digital reference services. These descriptions were then compared across organizations to find commonalties. Appended are the Pre-Test Interview Transcript, quality criteria developed by the expert panel, the AskERIC Pre-Test, Internet sites for further information, and a synopsis of data gathering. Eighty-nine tables and figures are included throughout the text. Contains an index. (Author/AEF)

Educational Computing Cleborne D. Maddux,Dee LaMont Johnson,Jerry Willis.2001 This text focuses on general concepts, theory, and research on teaching, learning, and technology rather than on hands-on assignments at the computer. This book is most suitable for courses where students already have basic computing skills and the focus is on issues of integration of technology in the classroom, or for courses where computing skills are taught simultaneously with the concepts, issues, and theories of integration. This text is geared toward answering the question: What would a teacher do differently if she/he used computers in her/his classroom? The book links actual practice to underlying theories of both teaching and learning. It helps students develop their own framework for thinking about educational computing.

Teaching 101 Jeffrey Glanz.2003-12-15 Written for a wide range of teacher and teacher candidates, this book intends to be both comprehensive and practical. It strives to bridge both pre-service and K-12 markets by addressing the foundations of education and an examination of the literature on teaching effectiveness, then moving into the more applied practical chapters. Teaching 101 identifies, describes and explains essential theories and practices for excellence in teaching and in being a successful teacher. It is written in a workbook format to facilitate easy reading use for beginning teachers. The ideas and principles contained here are generic and relate to teachers at all K-12 levels.

Last Chance Larry Schweiger.2016-11-16 This is an unabashed call to each and every American to moral duty for the future of life on earth, begins National Wildlife Federation president and CEO Larry J. Schweiger in this stirring exposé and call to action. Speaking to us not just as a conservation leader but also as an outdoor lover and a parent, Schweiger describes the causes and effects of global warming on our wildlife, ecosystems, and human life as we know it. With an engaging, down-to-earth tone (and a dash of wit; e.g., What Happens in Greenland Will Not Stay in Greenland), Schweiger breaks down the science behind our looming environmental catastrophe. Not letting go of hope, he also offers practical solutions and proposes a plan of action for everyday citizens. Last Chance will inspire each of us to take part in restoring the vital connection to our natural world before it's too late.
