Tille Hoyuk 1 John Moore.1993-12-01 Tille Hoyuk was excavated between 1979 and 1990 by the British Institute of Archaeology at Ankara as part of the Turkish Lower Euphrates Rescue Project. The site revealed important remains of the Late Bronze and Iron Ages, and of the Achaemenid, and Hellenistic periods, as well as a Medieval phase. Between the 12th and 15th centuries the prehistoric mound was occupied by the fortified residence of a local chieftain. This volume contains a discussion of the methodology and stratigraphy of the excavation, followed by catalogues of the pottery, metal objects and coins.

Theory and Practice of CO<sub>2</sub> Utilization in Steelmaking Rong Zhu.2022-09-12 This book analyzes the mechanism of the application of CO<sub>2</sub> in steelmaking, by looking at the thermodynamics and kinetics of the reactions of CO<sub>2</sub> with the elements present in molten steel. This book is the first academic monograph either at home or abroad on the application of CO<sub>2</sub> in the steelmaking field. The thermodynamic conditions of the reactions of CO<sub>2</sub> with silicon, manganese, phosphorus, chromium, nickel, vanadium, and other elements were calculated and analyzed using the FactSage thermodynamic software, and the selective oxidation law of the above multiple elements by CO<sub>2</sub> was also analyzed. In terms of kinetics, the interfacial reaction mechanism of CO<sub>2</sub> was analyzed via gas isotope exchange technology, and the O<sub>2</sub> transfer process and transfer rate between the CO<sub>2</sub>, slag, and steel were studied. In terms of materials and energy balance, how to use the high-temperature characteristics of CO<sub>2</sub> to control the temperature of the molten pool, improve the reaction conditions of molten iron, reduce the evaporation of molten iron, and reduce the amount of steelmaking dust were introduced. Based on the experimental data, theoretical models of unit operation for the application of CO<sub>2</sub> in steelmaking were established, including decarburization, denitrification, dephosphorization, decarburization and chromium retention, vanadium extraction, and carbon preservation, and these theoretical models were applied to the steelmaking production process, which is an important step in going from theory to practice. The above research work has opened up a new solution for energy saving and liquid steel cleaning in the iron and steel production process and represents progress in steelmaking technology. This book is used as a reference book for managers, engineering and technical personnel, and related professional teachers and students of Iron & Steel enterprises, government departments, consulting services and evaluation agencies, colleges, and secondary professional schools.
