The Popular Songs of Ireland, Collected and Ed., With Intr. and Notes, by T.C. Croker

Thomas Crofton Croker.2023-07-18 This book is a collection of popular songs from Ireland, collected and edited by Thomas Crofton Croker. It features songs from a variety of genres, including ballads and ditties, as well as detailed introductions and notes on the history and context of each song. A must-read for anyone interested in the traditional music and culture of Ireland. This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important, and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it. This work is in the public domain in the United States of America, and possibly other nations. Within the United States, you may freely copy and distribute this work, as no entity (individual or corporate) has a copyright on the body of the work. Scholars believe, and we concur, that this work is important enough to be preserved, reproduced, and made generally available to the public. We appreciate your support of the preservation process, and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant.

The Petrie Collection of the Ancient Music of Ireland George Petrie.2002 Contains all of Petrie's original text, including song texts in Irish and English; the melodies; and his introduction. The text is prefaced with a biographical essay, which positions the collection in the context of Petrie's life and work, and within the broader field of Irish traditional music. The piano accompaniments written by Petrie's daughter, which were included in the original collection have been removed; instead melodies have been restored back to the form in which Petrie originally notated them.

The minstrelsy of Ireland Alfred Moffat.1986

A Harvest Saved Nicholas Carolan.1997 A highly illustrated study of Daniel Francis O'Neill who was Chief of Police in Chicago at the beginning of the century.

The Making of Irish Traditional Music Helen O'Shea.2008 The book challenges the notion that Irish Traditional music expresses an essential Irish identity, arguing that it was an ideological construction of cultural nationalists in the nineteenth century, later commodified by the music and tourism industries. As a social process, musical performance is complicated by the varying experiences of musicians and listeners. The question of an Irish identity expressed musically is further explored through the experiences of both 'local' and 'foreign' musicians, including the author. The conclusion that a radicalised ideal of national culture and an assimilative model of cultural contact are compatible has important implications for Irish society today. Irish traditional music is now performed and consumed world-wide. The Making of Irish Traditional Music considers the implications of this for the way we understand music's relationship to individual and collective identities such as ethnicity and nationality. The core of this book is its analysis of the experiences of 'foreigners' playing Irish music, both in Australia and in the heart of Ireland's traditional music empire, County Clare, as 'pilgrims' to summer schools.

Celtic Cuties Winter Songbook Center for Irish Music.2023-09 The Center for Irish Music (CIM) has created the Celtic Cuties songbooks, a series of four music books/CDs-one for each season-that introduce families with young children to Irish traditional music. Created as a take-home resource to support the CIM's Celtic Cuties parent-participation music classes, this resource is useful for any music educator interested in teaching Irish traditional music.The enchanting songbooks feature original artwork by award-winning artist Suzanne Gaadt (featured artist for the ??National Wildlife Association) and sheet music with lyrics, chords and translations to Irish language selections.The original recordings feature performances by Norah Rendell (vocals, flute/whistle) and Brian Miller (bouzouki, guitar, banjo, vocals), with an impressive cast of supporting musicians including Dáithí Sproule (Altan), Máirtín de Cógáin, Seán Gavin (Bua, Téada), Mary Vanorny, Danny Diamond, Hannah Flowers, Marc Anderson, Sherry Minnick, Adrienne O'Shea, Ian McKenna, Alisa Potter Mee and Aria Strauss. The Celtic Cuties Winter Songbook CD (25 tracks) represents a tastefully-arranged collection of rhymes, songs and Irish dance tunes that represents key traditional instruments such as harp, uilleann pipes, bodhrán, accordion, banjo, fiddle, flute, whistle, bouzouki and guitar.Note: This resource of four songbooks and albums, one for each season, was created as an authentic introduction to the world of Irish traditional music. Designed with North American families in mind (who may be very new to Irish music and culture), each collection includes a selection or two in the Irish language (Irish Gaelic) with a simple phonetic guide for pronunciation help. We also made an effort to represent as many Irish instruments as possible on the recordings. Any mistakes, oversights, or omissions are our own. We hope this resource, which also includes some folk songs that originated in North America and English-speaking Europe, will encourage families around the world to learn more about Irish language, music, and dance! - Norah Rendell, CIM Executive Artistic

Old Irish Folk Music and Songs Patrick W. Joyce.1965

Traditional Music and Irish Society: Historical Perspectives Dr Martin Dowling.2014-04-28 These essays investigate the relation of traditional music to Irish modernity. The author integrates a survey of the early sources of Irish music with recent work on Irish social history in the eighteenth century to explore the question of the antiquity of the tradition and the class locations of its origins and he argues that the formation of Irish traditional music occurred alongside the economic and political modernization of European society in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Dowling goes on to illustrate the public discourse on music during the Irish revival in newspapers and journals from the 1880s to the First World War, also drawing on the works of Pierre Bourdieu and Jacques Lacan. The situation of music and song in the Irish literary revival is then reflected and interpreted in the life and work of James Joyce. Dowling concludes with an assessment of the current state of traditional music and cultural negotiation in Northern Ireland.

O'Brien Pocket History of Irish Traditional Music Gearóid Ó hAllmhuráin.2003 The books in this series explore the lore, legends, music, and politics of Ireland. Their concise, pocket-sized format is well suited for aficionados as well as those who have a general interest in the topics. The role of musicians in Irish society and the significance of the songs and dances they produced are explored in this overview of the Irish musical tradition. From the hypnotic harp music of early Ireland in the fifth century BC to the Lord of the Dance and Riverdance phenomena of the 1990s, a wide spectrum of historical sources, music, and folklore are examined, many of which provide a record of times long passed and little documented. Covering the entire breadth of Irish music, this book profiles the major musicians and musical groupings of each era and explores the continued popularity of Irish traditional music.

Roving Through Ireland Richard Voss, Laurence Traiger.2001 Irish folk song is the generic term that refers to ballads, rebel songs, work songs, lullabies, laments and drinking songs. Many Irish folk songs developed from historical events and Celtic mythology, and include airs, polkas, set dances, long dances, jigs, slides, slip jigs, hornpipes, and reels. About 200 tunes of the great Irish harpist Turlough O'Carolan have also survived through the aural tradition. This collection contains 38 tunes representing a broad cross section of Irish folk music which have been arranged for intermediate solo piano. Also, the songs are suitable for use as teaching material, as recital pieces, or as music for dance.

Sources of Irish Traditional Music c. 1600-1855 Aloys Fleischman. 2016-12-05 First Published in 1998. Irish traditional music is one of the richest treasuries of folk music in the world. Being an oral tradition, much of it has already been lost, and what has been recorded is only partially available in isolated collections. Until now, no composite picture has yet been presented, showing its remarkable range and diversity over four centuries. This volume covers Irish materials in general collections up to 1800 and in Irish collections up to and including Petrie's Ancient Music of Ireland (1855). The purposes of the project are to identify Irish dance tunes and songs; to present the scholar with a mass of material showing the evolution of the Irish vocal and instrumental folk style, period by period, from the earliest recorded tune up to the middle of the last century; to put into circulation many of the splendid airs which were lost but have now been located. Some 6,000 songs and dance tunes are presented, also including Scottish and English tunes. Included are Scottish tunes that were used by 18th-century Irish poets for their verses, and both English and Scottish tunes that are still current among Irish traditional musicians. Tunes of present-day currency which do not seem to be included may still be located by comparing their first 12 notes in the thematic index at the end of the volume. To make the vast array of material readily available, an index allows readers to locate a tune by its melodic incipit, by any of its titles, or by the first line of its text. Unfortunately, the vast majority of Irish songs noted up to the end of the last century lack texts, since the collectors were ignorant of the Irish language. But almost every other facet is covered—provenance, tonality structure, and variants.

The Ancient Music of Ireland Arranged for Piano Edward Bunting. 2011-04-20 Edward Bunting (1773-1843), the first systematic collector of Irish folksongs, was educated as an organ and piano player in Belfast. His life's work fell upon him at nineteen years old, when he was commissioned as a scribe to notate performances at a gathering of traditional harp players in Belfast in July 1792. He was so inspired by the music that, aided by some of the harpers, he embarked immediately upon travels around northwest Ireland to collect some of the old songs already close to disappearing. He published his first collection of Irish music four years later. In that volume and two later ones, he published almost 300 airs—some of them, according to tradition, dating as far back as the tenth century—and practically single-handedly rescued his country's ancient music from oblivion. The present collection, the last of Bunting's three such gatherings, contains 151 Irish airs arranged for piano, with the Irish names of the airs, their authors, and (where known) their dates of composition. Hard to find elsewhere, this is an indispensable book not only for students or lovers of Irish music, but also for students of general music history.

Songs of Erin - A Collection of Fifty Irish Folk Songs - The Words by Alfred Perceval Graves - Music Arranged for Voice and Piano - Op.76 Charles Villiers Stanford,Alfred Perceval Graves.2018-12-14 Songs of Erin, Op.76 is a large collection of traditional Irish songs compiled by Alfred P. Graves and set to music composed by Charles V. Stanford. This volume contains the original sheet music for these beautiful Irish ditties, presented here for the enjoyment of musicians and music-lovers alike. Alfred Perceval Graves (1846 - 1931) was an Anglo-Irish songwriter, poet, and folklorist. Other notable works by Graves include: Songs of Old Ireland (1882), Irish Songs and Ballads (1893), and Irish Folk-Songs (1897). Sir Charles Villiers Stanford (1852 - 1924) was an Irish composer, conductor, and teacher of music. He was educated at the University of Cambridge and continued his studies in Berlin and Leipzig. He was a very influential composer, responsible for making Cambridge University Musical Society an international acclaimed organisation. Stanford was also a profuse composer, producing a large corpus of work in many genres; however, he is perhaps best remembered for his Anglican choral works for church performance. His music eventually became overshadowed by that of Edward Elgar and a number of his former pupils in the 20th century. Many vintage books such as this are becoming increasingly scarce and expensive. We are republishing this volume now in a modern, high-quality edition complete with a specially commissioned new introduction on the history of musical notation.

A Short History of Irish Traditional Music Gearóid Ó hAllmhuráin.2017-05-08 The history of Irish traditional music, song and dance from the mythological harp of the Dagda right up to Riverdance and beyond. Exploring an abundant spectrum of historical sources, music and folklore, this guide uncovers the contribution of the Normans to Irish dancing, the role of the music maker in Penal Ireland, as well as the popularity of dance tunes and set dancing from the end of the 18th century. It also follows the music of the Irish diaspora from as far apart as Newfoundland and the music halls of vaudeville to the musical tapestry of Irish America today.
