Magiical Verses Kalpana Upadhyaya.2014-06-06 Magiical verses contains beautiful expression of love. This feeling in itself is superb and raises a common man to the level of a helpful, loving, caring, concerned and good human being. the book is a humble attempt of a less known author and contains thirty one Hindi and twenty English poems on the various shades of love. Feelings and emotions can be felt and described in any language that is why the author has included the poems composed in English as well as Hindi in this anthology. One can be in love with God--the creator, human beings, plants, animals, nature, self and his prized possessions and what not..... A person who does not love himself cannot give love to others. Love is a supreme feeling that can raise a man's higher consciousness and he is ready to face the music of life. the filial love is incomparable. Love, care and concern of a mother for her child cannot be compared. In the poem 'A Mother's Love for Her New Born' the poet has tried to express the feelings of a mother when she holds her new born in her arms. She looks at the child and is jubilant and elated. the child is an embodiment of completeness and fulfillment. Giving, forgiving, caring, being generous, gentle, kind, tender and calm are all the attributes of love.

Radha Mandakini Mathur.2015-09-18 The story of Radha and Krishna offers a kaleidoscopic view of love from the sensual to the spiritual. From this rich matrix, not only have artists, poets, saints, and religious cults drawn sustenance, but it has nurtured the mind of an entire subcontinent. In a predominantly patriarchal society where moral codes are laid out in terms of family and social responsibilities, the love between Radha and Krishna offers a delightful counterview. Here Radha, a married woman elder to Krishna, spellbound by his charms, running to the forest on a full moon autumnal night of Sharad Purnima. To make this even more scandalous, he is sporting with other Gopis, quenching the thirst of all like indiscriminating rain speeding across a vast landscape. Each Gopi has a Krishna for herself and Radha too holds on to her own in this giddy vortex of love and fulfillment. As Krishna leaves for Mathura never to return, Radha waits. Later he plays the role of the mediator in the great war of the Mahabharata, which constantly blurs the line between the right and the wrong in an exploration of the concept of Dharma. Radha remains steadfast in her own Swadharma, which is her longing for Krishna, and stands by the banks of her Yamuna even today. For me, Radha is someone who has snapped off the beginning and the end of a love story. She is the eternal flow, dhara (which curiously is formed when you invert the syllables of Radha). Here any love story would be a mere wave thrown up by this deep current. These poems explore Radha's mind where the past, present, and future are one, where the journey and the destination are one.

Martha Ann Selby, well-known translator of classical Indian poetry and literature, takes the bold step of opening this anthology to all readers, presenting crystalline translations of 500 poems dense with natural imagery and early examples of South Indian culture. Because of their form's short length, the anthology's five authors rely on double entendre and sophisticated techniques of suggestion, giving their poems an almost haikulike feel. Groups of verse center on one unique figure, in some cases an object or an animal, in others a line of direct address or a specific conversation or situation. Selby introduces each section with a biographical sketch of the poet and the conventions at work within the landscape. She then incorporates notes explaining shifting contexts. Excerpt: He has gone off all by himself beyond the wastes where tigers used to prowl and the toothbrush trees grow tall, their trunks parched, on the flinty mountains, while the lovely folds of your loins, wide as a chariot's seat, vanish as your circlet worked from gold grows far too large for you.

The Desire to Meet with the Beautiful India Radfar. 2003 Poetry. The first half of THE DESIRE TO MEET WITH THE BEAUTIFUL, Mirza's Cave, was written in India in 1994 and precedes the writing of India Poem. It shows an interest in the use of sacred texts and in the practice of oral transmission from teacher to students. The book's second half, Paper Sea, completed in 2002, describes a nearly twenty year commitment to the Greek island of Paros and begins an exploration into the early cultural contacts between ancient Greece and ancient India.

Three Hundred Verses Bhartrihari. 2017-09-15 Young, doe-eyed maidens beguile lovelorn men. Timeless wisdom is dispensed through brief, colourful vignettes. The bounty of the earth is celebrated even as the seasons bear witness to the amorous play of lovers. In Three Hundred Verses, Bhartrihari, one of the greatest Sanskrit poets of all time, brilliantly expounds on our most enduring concerns and dilemmas: living, loving and leaving.

Although composed centuries ago, the full force of his genius is abundantly evident in these poems, bursting with lush imagery and brimming with deep philosophical musings. Covering a wide range of themes—from the first stirrings of young love to the challenges of accepting life's transience—these verses are sure to resonate with contemporary readers. By turns playful and wise, A.N.D. Haksar's gorgeous and accessible translation captures the verve, acuity and erotic charge of Bhartrihari's most significant work.

Bare Soul Kalpna Singh-Chitnis.2015-07-15 Ever since Leaves of Grass first appeared in 1855, we find Walt Whitman simultaneously falsely imitated and truly manifesting in America. Who would have thought that his latest local incarnation would be in the body and the soul of an exceptional woman born in Gaya, Bihar, India, where the Buddha experienced Enlightenment? Yet here he is... ~ Jack Foley. Kalpna Singh-Chitnis' poetry is laden with original thoughts, spontaneity of expression and sublimity. Her poetic myth and philosophy are self-created and universal to the core. ~ Naseer Ahmed Nasir. Kalpna's poetry is a saga of struggle between two parts of the dual principle of male-female creation as one. It is the first ever attempt in English to understand, debate and resolve this issue in poetry. ~ Satyapal Anand. Only a poet of Kalpna's caliber could make words sing and dance or weep and mourn all at the same time. ~ John Harricharan. These are the verses not only of a major poet, but of Tārakāsura, a rakshasa (demon) was blessed that he could be killed by none other than Shiva's son, however, Shiva had won over Kama, the god of love. Parvati performed great tapas (or spiritual penance) to win the love of Shiva. Consequently, Shiva and Parvati's son Kartikeya was born to restore the glory of Indra, king of the Gods.

Poems on Life and Love in Ancient India Hala, Peter Khoroché, Herman Joseph Hugo Tiekén. 2009 An elegant translation of the Sattasaṁ (or Seven Hundred), India's earliest collection of lyric poetry, Poems on Life and Love in Ancient India deals with love in its many aspects. Mostly narrated by women, the poems reveal the world of local Indian village life sometime between the third and fifth centuries. The Sattasaṁ offers a more realistic counterpart to that notorious theoretical treatise on love the Kaṁmasūtra, which presents a cosmopolitan and calculating milieu. Translators Peter Khoroché and Herman Tiekén introduce the main features of the work in its own language and time. For modern readers, these short, self-contained poems are a treat: the sentiments they depict remain affecting and contemporary while providing a window into a world long past.

The Interior Landscape: Classical Tamil Love Poems A. K. Ramanujan.2014-01-14 In The Interior Landscape the great Indian poet and translator A.K. Ramanujan has drawn on a celebrated anthology of classical Tamil poetry to compose an unforgettable sequence of love poems. The story unfolds in a series of dramatic exchanges between a shifting array of characters—the lovers, relatives, friends, rivals, and sundry passersby—and as it does we are conducted through five phases of love, from first meeting, anxiety, infidelity and separation to final union, each associated with a lush interior landscape of its own. Immersed in the glories of the natural world, the poems evoke the whole spectrum of love while also capturing the gossip and wisecracking of those who look on from outside.

either because their copyright has expired, or because their authors have chosen to release them without charge. The difficulty is tracking down exactly what you want in the correct format, and avoiding anything poorly written or formatted. We've searched through the masses of sites to bring you the very best places to download free, high-quality ebooks with the minimum of hassle. Here is an updated version of the $domain website which many of our East European book trade customers have been using for some time now, more or less regularly. We have just introduced certain upgrades and changes which should be interesting for you. Please remember that our website does not replace publisher websites, there would be no point in duplicating the information. Our idea is to present you with tools that might be useful in your work with individual, institutional and corporate customers. Many of the features have been introduced at specific requests from some of you. Others are still at preparatory stage and will be implemented soon.
