Pacific Journeys John Dunmore.2005 This volume of studies on the Pacific, most of which relate to the French presence and influence in the region, has been planned as a tribute to the invaluable role John Dunmore has had in advancing historical knowledge of the Pacific and encouraging scholarly interest in this field.

Exploration of the South Seas in the Eighteenth Century: Rediscovered Accounts, Volume II Sandhya Patel.2016-12-08 The publication of key voyaging manuscripts has contributed to the flourishing of enduring and prolific worldwide scholarship across numerous fields. These navigators and their texts were instrumental in spurring on further exploration, annexation and ultimately colonisation of the Pacific territories in the space of only a few decades. This series will present new sources and primary texts in English, paving the way for postcolonial critical approaches in which the reporting, writing, rewriting and translating of Empire and the 'Other' takes precedence over the safeguarding of master narratives. Each of the volumes contains an introduction that sets out the context in which these voyages took place and extensive annotations clarify and explain the original texts. The translated accounts of voyages undertaken by foreign vessels abounded in an era when they encouraged not only competitive geopolitical initiatives but also commercial enterprises throughout Europe, resulting in a voluminous textual corpus. However, French merchant-seaman Etienne Marchand's journal of his voyage round the world in 1790-1792, encompassing an important visit to the Marquesas Archipelago during his first crossing of the Pacific, remained unpublished until 2005 and has only now been made available in English. The second volume of this series comprises an annotated translation in English of this document.

Hawaiian National Bibliography, 1780-1900 David W. Forbes.1999-02-01 This comprehensive, annotated, multivolume bibliography is a record of all printed works touching on some aspect of the political, religious, cultural, or social history of the Hawaiian Islands-from the first printed notice mentioning the Islands (in a German periodical of January 1780) to the beginning of the twentieth century, when the Islands ceased to be a separate political entity. Volume I covers the period from 1780 to 1830, when exploratory voyages to the northern Pacific had largely concluded and the arrival of improved printing equipment in the Islands resulted in a substantial increase in the number of works printed by the Mission Press in Honolulu. In addition to books and pamphlets, the bibliography includes newspaper and periodical accounts and single sheet publications such as broad­sides, circulars, playbills, and handbills be­cause they often contain the only eyewit­ness or contemporary description of an im­portant event or individual. Entries pertain­ing to Captain Cook's Third Voyage domi­nate the first twenty years of the bibliog­raphy. They reflect the profound impact of the voyage on both the Hawaiian cul­ture and on nineteenth-century European thought. Extensive annotations provide a brief summary of approximately 760 published works in the first volume of the bibliog­raphy. All known editions of each work are listed, together with the exact title, date of publication, size of the volume, collation of pages, number and type of plates and maps, refer­ences, and location of copies. The bibliog­raphy will be invaluable to scholars, librarians, rare book sellers, and book collectors within the field of Hawaiiana.

Apprendre à porter sa vue au loin Sylviane Albertan-Coppola.2009 'Porter sa vue au loin' en observant les différences entre les hommes pour connaître l'homme dans sa spécificité: cette exhortation de Rousseau ouvrait, deux siècles avant Lévi-Strauss, la voie à notre modernité. Michèle Duchet l'avait bien saisi: en 1971, dans Anthropologie et histoire, elle révélait comment, à partir de Buffon, s'est formée au 18e siècle, chez des penseurs comme Voltaire, Rousseau, Helvétius, Diderot, une science générale de l'homme, porteuse d'un discours du civilisé sur l'Autre qui allait déterminer durablement notre regard contemporain. De cette recherche pionnière devait naître une série de travaux importants, de rayonnement international, consacrés à la littérature de voyage, à la représentation du sauvage et à la pensée des Lumières. Des collègues et disciples, de France et d'ailleurs, spécialistes de lettres, langues, histoire, philosophie et sciences humaines, ont voulu témoigner, par leurs diverses contributions, de l'apport de Michèle Duchet aux sciences humaines comme de sa place singulière dans les études sur le 18e siècle, en misant sur la force des idées et sur la conviction que les Lumières ne sauraient s'éteindre.--P. Queequeg's Coffin Birgit Brander Rasmussen.2012-01-06 The encounter between European and native peoples in the Americas is often portrayed as a conflict between literate civilization and illiterate savagery. That perception ignores the many indigenous forms of writing that were not alphabet-based, such as Mayan pictographs, Iroquois wampum, Ojibwe birch-bark scrolls, and Incan quipus. Queequeg's Coffin offers a new definition of writing that comprehends the dazzling diversity of literature in the Americas before and after European arrivals. This groundbreaking study recovers previously overlooked moments of textual reciprocity in the colonial sphere, from a 1645 French-Haudenosaunee Peace Council to Herman Melville's youthful encounters with Polynesian hieroglyphics. By recovering the literatures and textual practices that were indigenous to the Americas, Birgit Brander Rasmussen reimagines the colonial conflict as one organized by alternative but equally rich forms of literacy. From central Mexico to the northeastern shores of North America, in the Andes and across the American continents, indigenous peoples and European newcomers engaged each other in dialogues about ways of writing and recording knowledge. In Queequeg's Coffin, such exchanges become the foundation for a new kind of early American literary studies.

Relations savantes Sophie Linon-Chipon, Daniela Vaj. 2006 De la Terre australe et de ses mythes annexes, tel le voyage au centre de la Terre, aux Alpes zurichoises et à la vallée de Chamonix, le monde est parcouru par les savants autant que par les aventuriers. Ce sont parfois les mêmes. Mais le savant se distingue de l'aventurier en publiant une relation constituant parfois l'argumentaire pour de nouvelles conquêtes...

Contact in Context Sandhya Patel. 2014-08-11 Contact between cultures has been understood in various ways and this particular volume considers the European cultural, social, scientific, philosophical and political contexts framing encounter. All of the essays thus look at the different ways in which individuals and institutions work these contexts into their representations of contact settings. In Part 1, the conventional stance is adopted where encounter is understood as taking place elsewhere and not on European soil. The chapters examine contact far afield and focus on how public and private contexts act upon ensuing interpretations and representations of inter-cultural interaction. Part 2 considers 'contact within', positing inversed sites of encounter. The essays point to the arrival of these discovered peoples on European soil as the eras of exploration ushered in periods of settlement and extended colonisation. The paradigm of contact between Europeans and Others (and Other spaces) was thus displaced both figuratively and literally. Amongst the conduits for such representations were the mid-nineteenth and early twentieth century European exhibitions or fairs. The studies here suggest that these encounters were also engineered by domestic contexts which gradually enclosed interaction within further, restrictive conceptual frameworks, not on islands and beaches, but in European towns and cities.
