Army Doctrine Publication ADP 7-0 Training July 2019 United States Government Us Army.2019-08-26 Training prepares the Army to conduct prompt and sustained operations across multiple domains. This manual, Army Doctrine Publication ADP 7-0 Training July 2019, articulates the Army's foundational training doctrine as leaders and units prepare to conduct unified land operations.The principal audience for this publication is Army commanders and staffs. Commanders and staffs of Army headquarters serving as joint task force or multinational headquarters should refer to applicable joint or multinational doctrine concerning joint or multinational planning.ADP 7-0 describes the fundamentals of how the Army trains to conduct operations as a unified action partneremploying the Army's operational concept-unified land operations. Developing and sustaining readiness isthe Army's number one priority. Training represents the most important activity units do every day to achievereadiness. The Army does this by conducting tough, realistic, standards-based, and performance-orientedtraining.ADP 7-0 is founded on the concept that unit training is a logical extension of the Army's operations process. The ideas and concepts of planning, preparing, executing, and assessing operations is fundamentally the same whether the unit trains to achieve readiness at home station or trains to operate when deployed. Learning and applying the concepts, ideas, and terminology of the operations process as units train makes the transition from training to operations more seamless for both leaders and their units-and improves the overall readiness of the force. Units train all the time-while deployed, at home station, and at combat training centers. Through effective, battle-focused training, units, leaders, and Soldiers achieve the tactical and technical competence that builds confidence, adaptability, and effectiveness. Army forces train using proven training doctrine that sustains their operational capabilities. The Army trains units, Soldiers, and Army Civilians to achieve proficiency in individual and collective tasks under challenging and realistic conditions. Training continues in deployed units to sustain skills and adapt to continual changes in an operational environment.During the entire training process, leaders provide candid and objective evaluations, assessments, after action reviews, and applied lessons learned. This approach produces versatile units, quality Soldiers, and Army Civilians ready to conduct operations. Readiness is the Army's top priority. Training is the most important activity units do to achieve and maintain readiness. ADP 7-0 establishes the principles and concepts of training and introduces training procedures.

Command Culture Jörg Muth.2011 Muth examines the different paths the United States Army and the German Armed Forces traveled to select, educate, and promote their officers in the crucial time before World War II. He demonstrates that the military education system in Germany represented an organized effort where each school provided the stepping stone for the next. But in the US, there existed no communication about teaching contents among the various schools.

Common Sense Training Lt. Gen. Arthur S. Collins, Jr..2011-04-06 Leadership is so much a part of the conduct of training that at times it is difficult to tell where one stops and the other starts. . . . “The best book on military training from platoon to division level that has been published in any army.”—Army magazine “His message is that whatever works and gets results by the most direct and efficient means is good. All else should be eliminated.”—Air University Review “A utilitarian book that talks intelligently of leadership, management and common sense.”—ARMOR magazine “A hardhitting and unvarnished . . . authoritative work that should be read and reread by everyone who aspires to be a truly professional soldier.”—General Bruce Palmer, U.S. Army (Ret.) “A gem, with few peers, invaluable . . . [Arthur Collins'] advice is always performance oriented. Don't talk so much about it, he says, Don't make so many fancy charts about training. Instead, do it. Teach it. Perform it.”—Parameters

Risk Mitigation and Leadership in Tactical U. S. Army Infantry Training - Combat Readiness Affected by Commander's Authority to Execute Risk Mitigation, Case Studies in Korean and Vietnam Wars U. S.

Military, Department of Defense (DoD), John Staeheli, U. S. Government. 2018-07-07 Despite the prevalence of irregular wars, the U.S. Army must also be prepared for the possibility of a high-intensity conventional war. The training required for this war must simulate the expected conditions, those of high-intensity conflict, as closely as possible. As U.S. strategic leaders look to the future and prepare the U.S. Army for the next conflict, they prepare for a war with a level of violence that resembles that of the Korean War. While conditions that simulate combat are dangerous and present inherent risks, the mitigation of that risk prevents the adequate simulation of a high-intensity combat situation. Therefore, this thesis studied how risk mitigation practices in U.S. Army tactical infantry training affect Soldiers' preparedness for high-intensity combat operations. By examining U.S. Army infantry training at the tactical level, U.S. Army safety and risk mitigation doctrine, cognitive and perceptual biases, and historical case studies, this thesis suggests that U.S. Army risk management practices neither hinder nor help combat preparedness. Instead, the abdication of a commander's authority to execute risk mitigation in the training environment affects combat readiness. Executive Summary * I.
