Finally, you can have a proper moan about the alarm clocks, traffic, computers, cold/hot weather, global events and people that plague you each and every day. Pages to fill with your personal grievances include: * What's Wrong With Everyone? List all the idiots you encounter at home, at work or in public. * What's Wrong With My Life? And whose fault is it? * I'm Not Jealous. Make a secret list of the people who are less talented than you but still more successful. * Had a Bad Week. Please, vent. * Retrospective Comebacks. The things you should have said at the time. * Twitter Rage. List idiotic comments that made you want to throw your phone at the wall. * General Gripes. Fill the back pages of the book with longheld grudges and pet peeves. IMPORTANT: Before you start, make sure that nobody you know or care about ever finds your copy of The Little Book of Bad Moods. Find a hiding place for it - and then channel your fury.

Text Me when You Get Home Kayleen Schaefer.2018 'Text me when you get home.' After joyful nights out together, female friends say this to one another as a way of cementing their love. It's about safety but, more than that, it's about solidarity. A validation of female friendship unlike any that's ever existed before, Text Me When You Get Home is a mix of historical research, the author's own personal experience, and conversations about friendships with women across the country. Everything Schaefer uncovers reveals that these ties are making us, both as individuals and as society as a whole, stronger than ever before.
