The Dark Posthuman Stephanie Polsky.2022-09-20 The Dark Posthuman: Dehumanization, Technology, and the Atlantic World explores how liberal humanism first enlivened, racialized, and gendered global cartographies, and how memory, ancestry, expression, and other aspects of social identity founded in its theories and practices made for the advent of the category of the posthuman through the dimensions of cultural, geographic, political, social, and scientific classification. The posthuman is very much the product of world-building narratives that have their beginnings in the commercial franchise and are fundamentally rooted in science, governance, and economics around the hegemonic appropriation of environments and commodification of bodies that initially fuelled white settler life worlds and continue to be operational in the way we conceive of these worlds as continuous ontological formations. The want has always been for ownership of any of these dimensions of being without regard to condition, to not remain stranded as the subsidiary of another's being, to another's claim to humanity, and finally, to escape the suffocating confines of an instrumental ontology that suggests a subcategory of humanity without rights onto itself. The Dark Posthuman distinguishes the posthuman's place within both the liberal and neoliberal imaginary and reveals how its appearance first entrenched itself through the avarice of English settler colonialism, and subsequently, through the paranoia of American slavery. This same figure of the posthuman played a crucial role in the functional adaptation of Cold War behavioural cybernetics, and thereafter, in the fetishization of technology within the era of global financialization. The shadowing of this arrangement during and beyond the long duration of humanity's domination of this world becomes the structural web work of this book. Stephanie Polsky is an interdisciplinary writer and academic working in the areas of Media Studies and Visual Culture. Her work explores the confluence of power around race and gender as technologies of governance. She has lectured widely in media and cultural studies, critical theory, and visual culture at a number of prestigious institutions including Goldsmiths University, Regent's University London, University of Greenwich, and Winchester School of Art. Most recently she has worked at California College of the Arts in Critical Studies and Diversity Studies. She holds a PhD in Visual Cultures from Goldsmiths, University of London and an MA in Media Studies from the University of Sussex. Her books include The End of the Future: Governing Consequence in the Age of Digital Sovereignty (Academica Press, 2019), Ignoble Displacement: Dispossessed Capital in Neo-Dickensian London (Zero Books, 2015), and Walter Benjamin's Transit: A Destructive Tour of Modernity (Academica Press, 2009).

Writing African American Women [2 volumes] Elizabeth A. Beaulieu.2006-04-30 Women have had a complex experience in African American culture. The first work of its kind, this encyclopedia approaches African American literature from a Women's Studies perspective. While Yolanda Williams Page's Encyclopedia of African American Women Writers provides biographical entries on more than 150 literary figures, this book is much broader in scope. Included are several hundred alphabetically arranged entries on African American women writers, as well as on male writers who have treated women in their works. Entries on genres, periods, themes, characters, historical events, texts, places, and other topics are included as well. Each entry is written by an expert contributor and relates its subject to the overall experience of women in African American literature. Entries cite works for further reading, and the encyclopedia closes with a selected, general bibliography. African American culture is enormously diverse, and the experience of women in African American society is especially complex. Women were among the first African American writers, and works by black women writers are popular among students and general readers alike. At the same time, African American women have been oppressed, and texts by black male authors represent women in a variety of ways. The first of its kind, this encyclopedia approaches African American literature from a Women's Studies perspective, and thus significantly illuminates the African American cultural experience through literary works. Included are several hundred alphabetically arranged entries, written by numerous expert contributors. In addition to covering male and female African American authors, the encyclopedia also discusses themes, major works and characters, genres, periods, historical events, places, and other topics. Included are entries on such authors as: ; Maya Angelou ; James Baldwin ; Frederick Douglass ; Nikki Giovanni ; June Jordan ; Claude McKay ; Ishmael Reed ; Sojourner Truth ; Phillis Wheatley ; And many others. In addition, the many works discussed include: ; Beloved ; Blanche on the Lam ; I know Why the Caged Bird Sings ; The Men of Brewster Place ; Quicksand ; The Street ; Waiting to Exhale ; And many more. The many topical entries cover: ; Black Feminism ; Black Nationalism ; Conjuring ; Children's and Young Adult Literature ; Detective Fiction ; Epistolary Novel ; Motherhood ; Sexuality ; Spirituality ; Stereotypes ; And many others. Entries relate their topics to the experience of African American women and cite works for further reading. Features and Benefits: ; Includes hundreds of alphabetically arranged entries. ; Draws on the work of numerous expert contributors. ; Includes a selected, general bibliography. ; Offers a range of finding aids, such as a list of entries, a guide to related topics, and an extensive index. ; Supports the literature curriculum by helping students analyze major writers and works. ; Supports the social studies curriculum by helping students use literature to understand the experience of African American women. ; Covers the full chronological range of African American literature. ; Fosters a respect for cultural diversity. ; Develops research skills by directing students to additional sources of information. ; Builds bridges between African American history, literature, and Women's Studies.

Richard Pryor in Hollywood Anthony Balducci.2018-07-06 Hollywood studios were once eager to bring stand-up comedy king Richard Pryor's dynamic humor to the big screen—so much so that studio executives gave him full access to available resources and creative control to develop his own projects. Unfortunately Pryor's screen talents were far less acclaimed than his stage ones, and flops such as The Toy and Superman III greatly diminished his reputation. The author examines how this downfall unfolded through comprehensive analyses of each of Pryor's movies.

The Black Wife Alan Goldfein.2009 Fiction. At once a radical black-white marriage history and a radical U.S. history, written in Alan Goldfein's uniquely poetic, and witty prose, THE BLACK WIFE finds its focal point in Baltimore, the most northern of the Southern cities, the most southern of the North--the Nation itself becoming a kind of solar system through which The Black Wife travels--in success, in failure, in success. Torn by the inescapable ironies of race, the passionate hopes of race and the divisions, Carol Poussaint Polson marries a white man, has his son, who struggles within a lineage tug-of-war, reaching for salvation in a spirit life bizarre and strangely pure. Carol reports from Vietnam and from Iraq. She has grown up in Baltimore at the same time that Nancy Pelosi has grown up in Baltimore, one a daughter of the ghetto, one a daughter of the mayor: they meet in a violent way, symbolic of the Sixties, and their lives obliquely parallel--until they meet for a final tragic time, symbolic of the Nineties. And symbolic of Now.

The Preacher's Wife Yuwanda Black.2021-05-18 PREVIEW A tropical island. A widow. A widower. Pain buried. Possibilities blooming.  At 47, Regina Clara Mae Wallace Richardson had recently buried more than her husband; she'd buried a life she never wanted in the first place.  He may have been married to you, but he loved me! the woman hissed. All eyes of the three hundred or so guests at the burial turned on the woman with the overly long veil, who was pointing a finger at the preacher's wife. What? Clara Mae said, unable to process the simple statement. He was going to leave you for me. And then, you, you-- he was miserable with you! she shouted. That's what brought on his heart attack. He wanted to leave you. He was going to leave you! But you just wouldn't let go. It's what killed him. He literally died of a broken heart, and it's all your fault! the woman raged. The collective silence of the crowd huddled around the soon-to-be-lowered-into-the-ground casket sounded like a cannon in Clara Mae's ears. She recognized each and every face; faithful members of her deceased husband's congregation. Every eye was trained on her. Say something you evil bitch! the woman screamed in Clara Mae's face, droplets of spittle landing on the black lace that fronted her Jackie-O like, pillbox hat. No wonder he wanted to leave you. You can't even shed tears over his dead body in a casket right in front of you. You're as cold as he said. And you killed him; just as surely as if you'd put a bullet in him! Clara Mae didn't remember her hand moving. She didn't remember any part of her moving. All she remembered was a body landing on top of her husband's casket, knocking over two floral arrangements that stood beside it, and the tasteful arrangement of white gardenias that adorned the top of it. They had been Fred's favorites. You'll pay for this! You'll pay for this! I swear to God, you'll pay for this! the curvy church secretary sputtered in rage as two attendants from the funeral home helped her up off the casket. By the time they'd hoisted her up, Clara Mae was seated in the back of the black stretch limousine the funeral home provided for the service. She could feel, rather than see, the hundreds of eyes on her as she looked straight ahead. Should they continue with the burial ceremony? Was she going to return? And what about the raging secretary? Who was supposed to do what with her?  With an unhappy marriage, a ton of deceit and a lifetime of regret behind her, Clara Mae decides to start over. The first thing she sheds is her 'preacher's wife' name of Clara Mae, becoming once again 'Regina.' Then, she moves to the tiny Caribbean island of Tranquille. There, she hopes to find the woman she'd always wanted to be; to live life unencumbered by the expectations of being a preacher's wife. She looks forward to going it alone. Only, life had other plans. Her neighbor on what she thought was going to be her tropical paradise turns out to be a motorcycle-riding transplant from Montana who makes it clear from day one that he intends to have her. It disturbs her in ways she hadn't wanted, needed, or counted on. But she soon discovers that there's more to the too-sexy-for-his-own-good, Holt Grambling. A dozen years younger than her, he's nursing a lifetime of grief, and is in tune with her in ways no man has ever been, despite their age difference. Holt holds up a mirror to Regina's life, and she reflects his back to him. Can they overcome their painful pasts to forge a love that allows both of them to embrace what the mirror of life shows? Or, will their pasts keep them apart?

The Secret Life of a Black Trophy Wife Marsha Stephens Wilson Rappaport.2004-09 The Secret Life of a Black Trophy Wife is my response to the past two decades of negative media stereotypes that seem to define people of color. Contrary to popular belief, although many people of African-American descent did live in neighborhoods limited racially by segregation, most of us did not live in socially dysfunctional ghettos consumed by lives of crime. We live regular lives in cities, on farms and in small towns. I was a Girl Scout until I was seventeen years old, and grew up in a multicultural, professional family. All of my relatives and friends worked toward the American Dream as hard as any other ethnic group. This is a book about being an American first.

Three Proofs for the Existence of God Uchemadu Chée Kamanu.2020-12-24 Three Proofs for the Existence of God gives scientific, historic, and prophetic proofs for the existence of God. If we do not think that a computer, or even a bicycle, could have come up by chance, without a designer, could we think that man who made the computer could have come up by chance, without a designer? Chance and design are mutually exclusive: the disproof of the one is the proof of the other. There is no third option! In biogenesis, genetics, dendrochronology, geophysics, and thermodynamics, evolution theory has been disproved experimentally and observationally. By default, therefore, design has been proven! Any attempt by evolutionists to experimentally disprove design, or prove chance, ends up proving design: The one conducting the experiment is the designer of that experiment, and the result is his design. If the experiment is left to chance, nothing happens! With historic data from the Bible added up, we show the year God created man and other things. Acts and relationships between God and his creation show up in other chapters to remind us that the Creator, God, lives and wills. One of these chapters, Black History in Scripture, disproves the saying that Christianity is the white man's religion. We show that the scriptures were translated into three African languages, for ten centuries, before there was an English Bible-among other facts. Did Jesus not live in Israel and Africa only?
