Blue Meridian Peter Matthiessen.1971 In 1969 and 1970 Peter Gimbel led a crew of professional divers on a world-ranging expedition to find and film underwater the great white shark. This was a feat never before accomplished, in part because the beast is rarely seen, in part because it the most dangerous of all underwater creatures. Peter Matthiessen was asked to write the story of this search, and to serve as a spare hand, both on the surface and below. At intervals over a period of seventeen months he accompanied Gimbel's crew--from the Caribbean to the whaling grounds off Durban, to various islands in the Indian Ocean, to Ceylon, and finally to eventual success off the bleak coast of South Australia ... he records the awesome experience of swimming in open water among hundreds of sharks at once, the beauties of strange seas and landscapes, and the camaraderie, tension, humor and frustrations that develop when people continually risking their lives dwell in close proximity day after day.

Behavior of the White Shark, Carcharodon Carcharias, and Scalloped Hammerhead, Sphyrna Lewini A. Peter Klimley.1984 Capture records of 109 white sharks caught along the western coast of North America indicate the following life history pattern. Adult females give birth to pups during the late summer and early fall south of the Point Conception to live both inshore or offshore at islands. As females continue to grow, they move back south of Point Conception yet remain offshore probably to give birth to young. It is believed that the areal distribution of the shark is governed by the availability of pinniped prey for adults and possibly the need for pupping grounds with few predators and competitors. The area with the highest abundance of sharks is the coastline within the Point Reyes/Farallon National Marine Sanctuary. A multisensor, computer-interfaced telemetry system has been built. Transmitters have sensors for monitoring swimming speed, depth, surrounding water temperature, and light level. Expansion board hardware converts pulsed telemetry signals to TTL logic. Software has been written to: (1) convert time intervals into sensor values, (2) display 8 channels of sensor values either numerically or graphically, (3) display sensor values of a single channel graphically with high resolution, and (4) store the sensor data on floppy disk. The system will be used to describe predation by the white shark on pinnipeds and orientational behavior in pelagic sharks.
