Introduction to Residential Construction Lending Brad Meyer. 2018-04 A construction loan is processed in very similar ways as with any other mortgage loan. Whether a new purchase or a refinance lending, all mortgage loans require an application, credit report, property appraisal, flood zone determination but there are some major differences when a residential new construction loan is processed. The improvements that were essential to establishing the value being used to finance the loan, don't yet exist. Consumers, builders and lenders must consider the construction contract, construction cost breakdown, plans and specifications, draw (progress) inspections, local permitting requirements, the certificate of occupancy, periodic funding to builders, retainage, how to prevent mechanic liens, and much more. Residential new construction loans are not complicated but do require the lender and consumer to consider structure decisions up front and meticulous tracking and monitoring throughout construction.

Lam, Gina Vega. 2020-11-10 An accessible guide to an increasingly complex subject, Entrepreneurial Finance: Concepts and Cases demonstrates how to address often-overlooked financial issues from the entrepreneur's standpoint, including challenges faced by start-ups and small businesses. The cases are new or fully updated for the second edition, and deal with real companies, real problems, and currently unfolding issues. A new chapter on business models includes coverage of social ventures, and the chapters on forms of business ownership and financing have been expanded. Upper-level undergraduate students of entrepreneurship will appreciate the book's practical approach and engaging tone, along with the hands-on cases and exercises that help students to break down complex concepts. Online resources for instructors include a case teaching manual, lecture slides, test bank, and interactive exercises.
