The Megalithic Architectures of Europe Christopher Scarre, Luc Laporte. 2015-12-31 Megalithic monuments are among the most striking remains of the Neolithic period of northern and western Europe and are scattered across landscapes from Pomerania to Portugal. Antiquarians and archaeologists early recognized the family resemblance of the different groups of tombs, attributing them to maritime peoples moving along the western seaways. More recent research sees them rather as the product of established early farming communities in their individual regions. Yet the diversity of the tombs, their chronologies and their varied cultural contexts complicates any straightforward understanding of their origins and distribution. Megalithic Architectures provides new insight by focusing on the construction and design of European megalithic tombs - on the tomb as an architectural project. It shows how much is to be learned from detailed attention to the stages and the techniques through which tombs were built, modified and enlarged, and often intentionally dismantled or decommissioned. The large slabs that were employed, often unshaped, may suggest an opportunistic approach by the Neolithic builders, but this was clearly far from the case. Each building project was unique, and detailed study of individual sites exposes the way in which tombs were built as architectural, social and symbolic undertakings. Alongside the manner in which the materials were used, it reveals a store of knowledge that sometimes differed considerably from one structure to another, even between contemporary monuments within a single region. The volume brings together regional specialists from Scandinavia, Germany, Britain, France, Belgium and Iberia to offer a series of uniquely authoritative studies. Results of recent fieldwork are fully incorporated and much of the material is published here for the first time in English. It provides an invaluable overview of the current state of research on European megalithic tombs. Viajeros del pasado Javier Arjona García-Borreguero.2016-02-01 La Historia de la Península Ibérica ha sido un continuo devenir de clanes, tribus, pueblos y culturas, de Viajeros del Pasado, que han conformado el ADN de aquella Iberia griega que los romanos transformaron en Hispania y sobre la que los visigodos establecieron la primera monarquía preludio de la futura España. Pero, ¿cuándo llegaron los primeros ocupantes del solar peninsular? A partir del estudio de las líneas de costa del Estrecho de Gibraltar, se explicará como un grupo de Ergaster pudo llegar hace 1.8 Ma hasta la Península Ibérica a través de una lengua de tierra formada en plena glaciación Donau. A esta primera migración africana, siguieron otras dos protagonizadas por Heidelberguensis y Sapiens, nuestra propia especie, cientos de miles de años más tarde. A estos últimos, autores de Altamira y Lascaux, que llegaron a convivir con el propiamente europeo Neanderthal, se unieron al comienzo del Holoceno nuevas tribus preibéricas norteafricanas, para confirmar el primer sustrato étnico y lingüístico peninsular.

The Oxford Handbook of Light in Archaeology Costas Papadopoulos,Holley Moyes.2021-12-09 Light has a fundamental role to play in our perception of the world. Natural or artificial lightscapes orchestrate uses and experiences of space and, in turn, influence how people construct and negotiate their identities, form social relationships, and attribute meaning to (im)material practices. Archaeological practice seeks to analyse the material culture of past societies by examining the interaction between people, things, and spaces. As light is a crucial factor that mediates these relationships, understanding its principles and addressing illumination's impact on sensory experience and perception should be a fundamental pursuit in archaeology. However, in archaeological reasoning, studies of lightscapes have remained largely neglected and understudied. This volume provides a comprehensive and accessible consideration of light in archaeology and beyond by including dedicated and fully illustrated chapters covering diverse aspects of illumination in different spatial and temporal contexts, from prehistory to the present. Written by leading international scholars, it interrogates the qualities and affordances of light in different contexts and (im)material environments, explores its manipulation, and problematises its elusive properties. The result is a synthesis of invaluable insights into sensory experience and perception, demonstrating illumination's vital impact on social, cultural, and artistic contexts.

La Península ibérica en el II milenio a.C. María del Rosario García Huerta, Javier Morales Hervás. 2004 Durante el II milenio a. C. las poblaciones asentadas en el ámbito mediterráneo y la Europa continental protagonizaron una compleja serie de procesos históricos que acabaron por transformar sus bases económicas, sociales e ideológicas, dando lugar a una nueva configuración que marcará la pauta de la trascendental evolución histórica que conocerá este amplio territorio. La península ibérica no será ajena a este proceso, que cristalizará en la definición de grupos culturales de acusada personalidad como el argárico. Hace ya más de un siglo que los hermanos Siret iniciaron sus pioneros estudios sobre el Bronce peninsular y desde entonces los avances en la investigación y caracterización de los distintos focos culturales peninsulares -cultura de las Morillas, Bronce valenciano- han sido muy notables y ello hacía necesario plantear la celebración de un Congreso donde se presentaran y debatieran las más recientes aportaciones en los estudios del II milenio a. C. en la Península Ibérica. El fruto de esta revisión se recoge en estas actas que pretenden dar respuesta a la esperada actualización en la investigación del Bronce peninsular.

Brazaletes de piedra neolíticos en la península Iberica (vi-v milenio a.c.) Francisco Martínez-Sevilla. 2018 El uso de brazaletes de piedra es uno de los fenómenos arqueológicos más destacado asociado a las primeras sociedades neolíticas en gran parte del Occidente Mediterráneo. Estos adornos se relacionan con el Neolítico Antiguo, caracterizado por el horizonte de las cerámicas decoradas cardiales y otras impresiones. En este libro se presenta el estudio petrológico, tecnológico, tipológico y traceológico realizado a estos adornos en la península ibérica. Estos análisis han permitido identificar culturalmente, a partir del uso, distribución y producción de los brazaletes, dos grupos culturales con un desarrollo social diferente y paralelo. Estos grupos son los tradicionalmente denominados como el Neolítico andaluz y el Neolítico valenciano. La distribución geográfica y cronológica de los brazaletes los convierte en un definidor cultural de las sociedades del Neolítico Inicial en estos ámbitos geográficos. De la misma forma, su artesanía, circulación y uso permite determinar parte del devenir socioeconómico de estas primeras poblaciones neolíticas. The use of stone bracelets is one of the most fascinating archaeological phenomena associated with the first Neolithic societies in most of the Western Mediterranean. These adornments are associated with the Early Neolithic, characterised by the advent of pottery with cardial and other impressed decorations. This book presents a petrological, technological, typological and traceological study of these bracelets in the Iberian Peninsula. Through these analyses, based on the use, distribution and production of the bracelets, the author identifies two cultural groups with different and parallel social developments. These groups are those traditionally known as the 'Andalusian Neolithic' and the 'Valencian Neolithic'. The geographic and chronological distribution of the bracelets makes them a cultural marker of Early Neolithic societies in these geographical areas. Similarly, analysis of their craftsmanship, circulation and use allows the author to determine aspects of the socioeconomic evolution of these first farming populations.

The Archaeology of Iberia Margarita Diaz-Andreu, Simon Keay. 2013-12-02 For many archaeologists, Iberia is the last great unknown region in Europe. Although it occupies a crucial position between South-Western Europe and North Africa, academic attention has traditionally been focused on areas like Greece or Italy. However Iberia has an equally rich cultural heritage and archaeological tradition. This ground-breaking volume presents a sample of the ways in which archaeologists have applied theoretical frameworks to the interpretation of archaeological evidence, offering new insights into the archaeology of both Iberia and Europe from prehistoric time through to the tenth century. The contributors to this book are leading archaeologists drawn from both countries. They offer innovative and challenging models for the Paleolithic, Neolithic, Copper Age, Bronze Age, Iron Age, Roman, Early Medieval and Islamic periods. A diverse range of subjects are covered including urban transformation, the Iron Age peoples of Spain, observations on historiography and the origins of the Arab domains of Al-Andalus. It is essential reading for advanced undergraduates and those researching the archaeology of the Iberian Peninsula.

Prehistoria Antigua de la Península Ibérica Mario MENÉNDEZ FERNÁNDEZ.2013-01-23 La ciencia prehistórica ha experimentado un notable auge en los últimos años al desprenderse de dogmatismos, variar sus intentos de conocimiento y abrirse a la multidisciplinariedad. Con este nuevo enfoque, la Península Ibérica ha visto aumentar notablemente su ámbito cronológico de estudio al descender la ocupación humana de la misma por debajo del millón de años. Paralelamente, la aparición de nuevos y espectaculares yacimientos arqueológicos, estudiados desde diversas y renovadas disciplinas, han enriquecido en cantidad y calidad las informaciones arqueológicas disponibles. Por estas razones, la Prehistoria del siglo XXI formula nuevas hipótesis para el mejor conocimiento de nuestros orígenes como europeos y para explicar la evolución biológica y cultural de las sociedades de cazadores recolectores de la Prehistoria Antigua (Paleolítico y Mesolítico).

The Emergence of Pressure Blade Making Pierre M. Desrosiers.2012-03-13 Human development is a long and steady process that began with stone tool making. Because of this skill, humans were able to adapt to climate changes, discover new territories, and invent new technologies. Pressure knapping is the common term for one method of creating stone tools, where a larger device or blade specifically made for this purpose is used to press out the stone tool. Pressure knapping was invented in different locations and at different points in time, representing the adoption of the Neolithic way of life in the Old world. Recent research on pressure knapping has led for the first time to a global thesis on this technique. The contributors to this seminal work combine research findings on pressure knapping from different cultures around the globe to develop a cohesive theory. This contribution to this volume represents a significant development to research on pressure knapping, as well as the field of lithic studies in general. This work will be an important reference for anyone studying the Paleolithic, Mesolithic, and Neolithic periods, lithic studies, technologies, and more generally, cultural transmission.

Celtic from the West 3 John T. Koch,Barry Cunliffe.2016-09-01 The Celtic languages and groups called Keltoi (i.e. 'Celts') emerge into our written records at the pre-Roman Iron Age. The impetus for this book is to explore from the perspectives of three disciplines--archaeology, genetics, and linguistics--the background in later European prehistory to these developments. There is a traditional scenario, according to which, Celtic speech and the associated group identity came in to being during the Early Iron Age in the north Alpine zone and then rapidly spread across central and western Europe. This idea of 'Celtogenesis' remains deeply entrenched in scholarly and popular thought. But it has become increasingly difficult to reconcile with recent discoveries pointing towards origins in the deeper past. It should no longer be taken for granted that Atlantic Europe during the 2nd and 3rd millennia BC were pre-Celtic or even pre-Indo-European. The explorations in Celtic from the West 3 are drawn together in this spirit, continuing two earlier volumes in the influential series--Provided by publisher.

Los primeros grupos neolíticos de la cuenca extremeña del Tago Enrique Cerrillo Cuenca.2005 This is the first monograph to focus on the study of Early Neolithic groups along the Tagus river basin, in Central Spain. The author presents the first archaeological results on the Neolithic communities in the province of Caceres, Central Spain, establishing a theoretical and methodological framework to analyse the archaeological record. A large part of the work gathers together previous archaeological research on the area and presents new data obtained from a review of museum collections, surveys, and the excavation of the site of Los Barruecos, the main archaeological reference for the Early Neolithic in the region. Other chapters cover the Early Neolithic material culture, the archaeobotanical data and an analysis of faunal remains, among other data.

La Prehistoria en la península Ibérica Pilar López García.2020-11-23 El presente volumen es el resultado de la colaboración interdisciplinar de un grupo de los más destacados especialistas en el estudio de la Prehistoria peninsular, que han combinado los más actuales conocimientos científicos sobre el tema para ofrecer una visión holística de un pasado que no siempre se interpreta exclusivamente a través de la cultura material. El resultado es una obra completamente distinta a las hasta el momento publicadas, que se aleja de una presentación meramente cronológica al permitir una lectura más temática, sin necesidad de tener que leer capítulo tras capítulo para la comprensión de un periodo tan amplio como el que nos ocupa. A lo largo de sus páginas se analizan aspectos como la evolución humana, el paisaje, la alimentación, el desarrollo de la agricultura y la ganadería, así como el arte, desde el Paleolítico hasta el Bronce Medio.

Materials, Productions, Exchange Network and their Impact on the Societies of Neolithic Europe Marie Besse,Jean Guilaine.2017-01-31 How is it possible to identify the circulation of materials or of finished objects in Neolithic Europe, as well as the social networks involved? Several approaches exist for the researcher, and the present volume provides some examples.

El Neolítico Millán Mozota Holgueras,Juan José Ibáñez,Juan F. Gibaja Bao.2021-12-09 El Neolítico ha sido considerado uno de los momentos claves de la historia de la humanidad. El paso de una economía basada en la caza y la recolección, que había pervivido durante centenares de miles de años, a otra fundamentada en la domesticación animal y vegetal, produjo cambios revolucionarios que no solo afectaron a los productos consumidos, sino también a nuestra forma de organizarnos socialmente, a los modos de vida y sus efectos sobre el paisaje, a la tecnología, a las creencias, etc. Este libro ahonda en aquellas primeras comunidades neolíticas, que surgieron en Próximo Oriente y que se expandieron por toda Europa en pocos siglos, de las que somos sus directos herederos Territorio neolítico Gabriel García Atiénzar.2009 This work discusses in depth the series of changes involving human communities that took place in the strip of land between the rivers Júcar and Segura (south-eastern Iberian Peninsular) over a period of nearly 3,000 years, ca. 5600 - 2600 cal BC, from the Ancient Neolithic Cardial period up to the Chalcolithic age. The methodology applied here, with the help of GIS analysis, is based on establishing uses, connections, and/or relationships of dependency between settlements and their different functionality. It indicates a settlement pattern that is perfectly adapted to the surrounding environment, with gradual transformations, but also specific changes that correspond to social fission and aggregation, typical of egalitarian socio-economic tribal formations. The book concludes by analysing the historic moment in which we begin to find clear evidence of a breakdown in the egalitarian way of life and the first social inequalities. Spanish text.

Beyond War Albert García-Piquer,Assumpció Vila-Mitjà.2016-06-22 The long-standing debate over the origins of violence has resurfaced over the last two decades. There has been a proliferation of studies on violence, from both cross-cultural and ethnographic and prehistoric perspectives, based on a reading of archaeological and bioarchaeological records in a variety of territories and chronologies. The vast body of osteoarchaeological and architectural evidence reflects the presence of interpersonal violence among the first farmer groups throughout Europe, and, even earlier, between hunter-gatherer societies of the Mesolithic. The studies in Beyond War present the necessity of rethinking the concept of “violence” in archaeology. This overcomes the old conception that limits violence to its most evident expressions in war and intra- or extra-group conflict, opening up the debate on violence, which allows the advancement of knowledge of the social life and organization of prehistoric societies. Determining archaeological indicators to identify violent practices and to analyse their origin and causes is fundamental here, and represents the only way to find out when and under what historical conditions prehistoric societies began to organize themselves by exercising structural violence.

Prehistoria de la Península Ibérica Mario Menéndez. 2019-09-05 La Prehistoria se ha visto tradicionalmente como una larga preparación para la Historia, pero también como un periodo donde se conformaron la mayoría de nuestros comportamientos actuales. Sintetizar la Prehistoria de la península ibérica representa resumir un millón y medio de años, el 99,9% de nuestra Historia como seres humanos en el continente europeo y, singularmente, en Iberia. Dado que la Prehistoria fue un mundo sin fronteras y de modos de vida itinerantes, no sería comprensible una Prehistoria ibérica al margen de su contexto europeo, razón por lo que se han incluido referencias a las culturas y a los acontecimientos extrapeninsulares contemporáneos a los hechos narrados para facilitar la comprensión y enriquecer los contenidos específicamente ibéricos; donde se juntan lo mediterráneo y lo atlántico, lo europeo y lo africano, materializando en este apéndice de Eurasia una zona enriquecida por la mezcla y el mestizaje, última frontera de la ola de avance neolítica que desde Oriente Próximo revolucionó los modos de vida y nuestra relación con la naturaleza. Fue área fuente y área refugio en fenómenos biológicos y culturales tan trascendentes para Europa como el auge y el ocaso del mundo Neandertal; o del Megalitismo, primera arquitectura simbólica humana, entre otros acontecimientos notables; y sumó en su territorio lo semita y lo indoeuropeo, lo continental y lo mediterráneo, con resultados admirables. Prehistoria de la Península Ibérica combina el rigor, la actualidad y la exposición divulgativa, destinado tanto a los estudiantes universitarios como a los que gustan de conocer la Arqueología y la Historia.

Archaeology in the River Duero Valley Jose Carlos Sastre Blanco, Patricia Fuentes Melgar, Óscar Rodríguez-Monterrubio. 2018-10-19 From Prehistory to the Middle Ages, from the Spanish mainland to the Portuguese Atlantic Coast, the Duero (or Douro as it is known in English because of its Portuguese translation) has served as a river of great historical importance. It is a river flowing from the past into the future with the legacy of the Homo Antecessor and the most ancient remains of European Prehistory, showcasing the first samples of inland farming during the Iberian Neolithic period and many examples of Schematic Rock Art. Before the total obliteration of archaeological sites in the Duero valley due to active agricultural labours and the course of time itself, the Archaeological and Protohistoric Society of Zamora, Zamoraprotohistórica, leads a programme of researching activities to preserve this heritage and to keep it safe for future generations. In order to accomplish this, the association organises a cycle of conferences, lectures and meetings gathering local, national and international archaeologists and historians in a dynamic and vibrant exchange of knowledge. This volume is a compilation of the most remarkable interventions in those meetings, and each paper gathered here represents a unique reflection on the history of the river.

Life and death in the early Neolithic settlement of El Prado (Pancorbo, Burgos) : constructing the Neolithic in Iberia Carmen Alonso Fernández. 2017 El Prado es uno de los escasos yacimientos al aire libre del Neolítico Antiguo de la mitad norte peninsular. En la excavación arqueológica han sido documentadas cincuenta estructuras negativas asociadas aun poblado del Neolítico Antiguo con dataciones absolutas ca. 5295-4690 cal BC. Desde el punto de vista tipológico y funcional se documentan silos y fosas revestidas, fosas/cubetas no revestidas, fosas funerarias, estructuras relacionadas con el aprovechamiento del agua y una estructura de combustión. También hay una fosa ritual de tipo votivo del Neolítico Final (4045-3299 BC). Se presenta un estudio multidisciplinar del único asentamiento al aire libre del Neolítico Antiguo que ha sido excavado íntegramente en el interior peninsular. Es un trabajo inédito que contribuye a explicar los primeros asentamientos neolíticos del oeste de Europa y las sociedades segmentarias a partir del uso del espacio, la cerámica, la industria lítica, el ritual funerario, la bioarqueología, el paleoambiente y la fauna. El Prado is one of the few open-air Early Neolithic sites in the northern half of Spain. In the archaeological excavation of the site, fifty negative structures associated with an Early Neolithic settlement were documented, with absolute datings ca. 5295-4690 cal BC. From the typological and functional points of view, there are storage pits, coated pits, uncoated pits, burial pits, water storage structures and a Polynesian oven. There is also a votive-type ritual pit of the Late Neolithic (4045-3299 cal BC). The authors here present a multidisciplinary study of the only Early Neolithic open-air settlement that has been entirely excavated in the interior of Iberia. 'Life and Death in the Early Neolithic Settlement of El Prado (Pancorbo, Burgos): Constructing the Neolithic in Iberia' is a previously unpublished study that helps to explain the first Neolithic settlements of Western Europe and segmental societies, through analyses of the use of space, ceramics, lithic tools, funerary ritual, bioarchaeology, the paleoenvironment and faunal remains. commemorate the 50th anniversary of the discovery of the megalithic necropolis of Petit-Chasseur in Sion (Valais, Switzerland), an international conference was organised from the 27th to the 29th of October 2011 in Sion. This book constitutes the conference proceedings.

Comunidades Neolíticas Del Noreste de la Península Ibérica Juan Francisco Gibaja Bao. 2003 The Early-Middle Neolithic period in northeast Spain was a period of considerable change. Through statistical analysis of four burial sites, examination of associated grave goods and use-wear analysis of stone artefacts from the graves, the author aims to reconstruct aspects of the socio-economic organisation of the people who inhabited these sites. Flint was shown to be an important part of funerary ritual and inferences are made on links between tools and the age and sex of the individual interred, and their relationship to other types of grave goods. Spanish text; short French and English abstract.

Megalithic Tombs in Western Iberia Chris Scarre, Luiz Oosterbeek. 2019-12-27 Western Iberia has one of the richest inventories of Neolithic chambered tombs in Atlantic Europe, with particular concentrations in Galicia, northern Portugal and the Alentejo. Less well known is the major concentration of tombs along the Tagus valley, straddling the Portuguese-Spanish frontier. Within this cluster is the Anta da Lajinha, a small megalithic tomb in the hill-country north of the River Tagus. Badly damaged by forest fire and stone removal, it was the subject of joint British-Portuguese excavations in 2006-2008, accompanied by environmental investigations and OSL dating. This volume takes the recent excavations at Lajinha and the adjacent site of Cabeço dos Pendentes as the starting point for a broader consideration of the megalithic tombs of western Iberia. Key themes addressed are relevant to megalithic tombs more generally, including landscape, chronology, settlement and interregional relationships. Over what period of time were these tombs built and used? Do they form a horizon of intensive monument construction, or were the tombs the product of a persistent, long-lived tradition? How do they relate to the famous rock art of the Tagus valley, and to the cave burials and open-air settlements of the region, in terms of chronology and landscape? A final section considers the Iberian tombs within the broader family of west European megalithic monuments, focusing on chronologies, parallels and patterns of contact. Did the Iberian tombs emerge through connections with older established megalithic traditions in other regions such as Brittany, or were they the outcome of more general processes operating among Atlantic Neolithic societies?

Muge 150th Nuno Bicho, Cleia Detry, T. Douglas Price. 2015-11-25 Muge 150th: The 150th Anniversary of the Discovery of Mesolithic Shellmiddens is organised into two volumes. While the first volume focused on Mesolithic finds in both the Muge and Sado valleys, this book, with a total of twenty-two chapters, brings together a series of papers on the Mesolithic period and its transition to the Neolithic all over Europe, including Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Portugal, Spain, Serbia, Sweden and the UK, as well as a series of general papers discussing methodological or theoretical aspects of the Mesolithic. In addition, the closing chapters of this volume venture outside the realm of the European Mesolithic-Neolithic world, presenting case studies on shell middens from both the Patagonia and the Red Sea.

Prehistoric Warfare and Violence Andrea Dolfini,Rachel J. Crellin,Christian Horn,Marion Uckelmann.2018-07-20 This is the first book to explore prehistoric warfare and violence by integrating qualitative research methods with quantitative, scientific techniques of analysis such as paleopathology, morphometry, wear analysis, and experimental archaeology. It investigates early warfare and violence from the standpoint of four broad interdisciplinary themes: skeletal markers of violence and weapon training; conflict in prehistoric rock-art; the material culture of conflict; and intergroup violence in archaeological discourse. The book has a wide-ranging chronological and geographic scope, from early Neolithic to late Iron Age and from Western Europe to East Asia. It includes world-renowned sites and artefact collections such as the Tollense Valley Bronze Age battlefield (Germany), the UNESCO World Heritage Site at Tanum (Sweden), and the British Museum collection of bronze weaponry from the late Shang period (China). Original case studies are presented in each section by a diverse international authorship. The study of warfare and violence in prehistoric and pre-literate societies has been at the forefront of archaeological debate since the publication of Keeley's provocative monograph 'War Before Civilization' (Oxford 1996). The problem has been approached from a number of standpoints including anthropological and behavioural studies of interpersonal violence, osteological examinations of sharp lesions and blunt-force traumas, wear analysis of ancient weaponry, and field experiments with replica weapons and armour. This research, however, is often confined within the boundaries of the various disciplines and specialist fields. In particular, a gap can often be detected between the research approaches grounded in the humanities and social sciences and those based on the archaeological sciences. The consequence is that, to this day, the subject is dominated by a number of undemonstrated assumptions regarding the nature of warfare, combat, and violence in non-literate societies. Moreover, important methodological questions remain unanswered: can we securely distinguish between violence-related and accidental trauma on skeletal remains? To what extent can wear analysis shed light on long-forgotten fighting styles? Can we design meaningful combat tests based on historic martial arts? And can the study of rock-art unlock the social realities of prehistoric warfare? By breaking the mould of entrenched subject boundaries, this edited volume promotes interdisciplinary debate in the study of prehistoric warfare and violence by presenting a number of innovative approaches that integrate qualitative and quantitative methods of research and analysis.

Estudios sobre el Neolítico en el sureste de la Península Ibérica María de la Paz Román Díaz.1996 El Neolítico en la Península Ibérica ha sido estudiado de forma tradicional desde un enfoque historicista que a partir de los años setenta se ha pretendido sustituir por los presupuestos teórico-metodológicos de la Nueva Arqueología. Sin embargo, el incremento de los datos no ha ido acompañado sustancialmente por un cambio cualitativo sobre el conocimiento que podemos tener acerca del desarrollo de las primeras comunidades agrícolas-ganaderas y sus procesos de cambio. En la región Sureste de la Península Ibérica, el mayor protagonismo en la Prehistoria ha estado centrado en las llamadas Cultura de Los Millares y Cultura de El Argar. Tan sólo contamos con una mayor información del Neolítico en su fase final, la llamada Cultura de Almería, de la que aún no se ha concretado su significado y contenido, debido a la aceptación general de tales culturas u horizontes. Dada la importancia del Sureste peninsular en el marco de los estudios prehistóricos de la península, era imprescindible la elaboración de una síntesis crítica, desde un punto de vista histórico y social, de cómo se ha enfocado el estudio del neolítico en esta región desde la labor de Luis Siret hasta las publicaciones más recientes. Tal labor se hace teniendo en cuenta el contexto histórico-profesional y teórico-metodológico de la Arqueología y la Prehistoria en España. Se finaliza con una valoración de las distintas propuestas teóricas relativas al objeto de estudio, la exposición de una serie de tópicos y la propuesta de un enfoque diferente a partir de los principales debates actuales sobre el neolítico peninsular.

ARQUEOLOGÍA EN EL ENTORNO DEL BAJO GUADIANA CAMPOS CARRASCO, JUAN M. ,PÉREZ MACÍAS, JUAN AURELIO,GÓMEZ TOSCANO, FRANCISCO.2016-09-23 En este volumen se recogen las actas de un Encuentro Internacional de Arqueología del SW, integrado por grupos de investigadores hispano- portugueses, celebrado en Huelva-Niebla en 1993, a fin de realizar una puesta en común y difundir los resultados de sus investigaciones.
