Diverse Voices in Photographic Albums Mary Trent,Kris Belden-Adams.2022-07-29 Through a variety of case studies by global scholars from diverse academic fields, this book explores photographic-album practices of historically marginalized figures from a range of time periods, geographic locations, and socio-cultural contexts. Their albums' stories span various racial, ethnic, gender and sexual identities; nationalities; religions; and dis/abilities. The vernacular albums featured in this volume present narratives that move beyond those reflected in our existing histories. Essays examine the visual, material, and aural strategies that album-makers have used to assert control over the presentation of their histories and identities, and to direct what those narratives have to say, a point of special relevance as these albums move out of private domestic space and into public archives, institutions, and digital formats. This book does not consider photographic albums and scrapbooks as separate genres, but as a continuum of modern creative practices of photographic and mass-print collage aimed at self-expression and narrative-building that co-evolved and were readily accessible. The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, history of photography, visual culture, material culture, media studies, and cultural studies.

Mirrors and Smoke: How I Became a Photographer Robert Dunn. 2023-05-05 In 2011, prize-winning fiction writer Robert Dunn read a review of a new Fuji single-lens-reflex camera, and something clicked. Later that day, although the then-new Fuji X100 was as hard to get as the latest iPhone, he'd tracked one down. The next day he went out shooting photos for the first time since a brief dalliance with a cheap Nikon decades earlier. Little did Dunn know his life had changed. He'd always loved photography, and now he took his new camera with him everywhere he went. Photographs accumulated, and he began to put them into books. Soon he was making photobooks in a spirit similar to the novels he'd written, and those photobooks are now in the permanent collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the International Center of Photography, and the New York Public Library. In Mirrors and Smoke, Dunn tells the full story of his discovery of photography, and the way it changed his life. It's a memoir of finding a new passion later in life. It's about the bountiful world of photobooks. Most of all, it's about the way Dunn has learned to see the essence of the world around him in ever greater and more meaningful detail, then take that empathic vision and turn it into art. As he writes: "I found out that being a photographer was vastly more interesting than not being one. That walking about trying to see, and feel, as much as possible, then render all that into images was a much richer life than not doing it." Mirrors and Smoke is a book for everyone who has already traced the magical path of becoming a photographer, as well as the simply photography-curious. Read it, then pick up your camera and go hit the streets. There's a bounty of beauty and revelation waiting for you out there.

Magic Light and the Dynamic Landscape Jeanine Leech. 2014-07-08 It has been said many times that photography is painting with light, or that photography is all about light. For Jeanine Leech, the idea of painting with light is a passion. She uses it as a brush for color, texture, and dimension to create dynamic and expressive images. In this book, Leech details her techniques for finding and using the best light to create breathtaking landscape images. To get that special moment, you are often chasing the light. In landscape photography there are moments of defining light. It can be a single moment that may only last a second when the light is just perfect. These moments don't happen every day but when they do one frame can tell the story with more visual impact than all the others. The ability to improvise, to stop and get the light when these moments occur randomly, is the difference between producing a standard photo and something that truly stand out. This book provides the basic principles of photography necessary for capturing this magic successfully. Starting with a rundown of the equipment that Leech uses and explaining the core concepts of photography, the book proceeds to detail shooting at different times of day. From the first light at dawn, through midday and onto dusk, Leech provides stunning examples of how each type of light can be used. Each photo in the book is accompanied by the camera settings used to capture it. True magic light is rare. It happens in a fleeting moment, not to be repeated again, lasting only a few minutes or seconds. Its quality is so unique that it changes the color, appearance and ultimately the mood of the subjects it falls upon. Part three of the book focuses on the different types of landscapes. First weather is covered. A photo shoot in the Smoky Mountains shows how attention to detail and setting can make the shot. The light and the weather change in mere seconds. As Leech points out, knowing the basics of photography and how to work your equipment quickly is essential. Each of the stunning photos in the book is a testament to this. After that Leech discusses how she chooses different landscapes. Intimate landscapes can be found anywhere. Sometimes making artistic choices like only focusing on a small portion of a setting provides an image with greater impact. Finally, the book covers the use of polarizer's, various filters and multiple digital darkroom techniques.

Black & White Photography Steve Pease.2017-06-13 To make a photograph it's best, you need to explore the options to get the best look. I almost always make all shots in color. Then convert to black and white if the shot looks good in black and white. That way you always have a color copy. It's much harder to recolor a photo than take the color out if you ever want a color print of the shot. I do take shots in black and white sometimes with my phone camera. It is beneficial to see the shot in black and white many times. It helps you learn to see shadows and tones in the shot different from when you see only in color. It also makes texture pop out of the shot in a way you can't see in color. Most people like to see photos in color most of the time. It's the way most of us see everything. That is a good thing but it can take away from some important things we should see. There are situations where black and white is better. In high contrast photos black and white can be much more interesting. Making a shot black and white can also take a so so shot and make it great. Black and white photographs are very simplistic. Taking out the color changes the focus. The focus goes from the color to the composition and the creativity of the shot. Color can distract from the shot. It can take the focus away from the subject, which is something you don't want to do. Look at the shot in color. What do you think it will look like without color? Do you think it may look better without color. Desaturate the shot and see what it looks like. There are many ways to take out the color, but to look the best you need to do a few more things than desaturate only. We will get into that more later. Why should you take photos in black and White? There can be many subtle tone differences you can't get in a color photo. Black and white can bring out your creativity more than with color. You see light different in black and white than you do in color. Black and white brings out and emphasises emotion in the shot. Black and white highlights form, patterns and negative space. Without color, you see the interaction of the lines in the shot, to bring out the shapes and forms. Flat light also has more options to make a shot interesting. Most flat light shots are boring. Black and white photos can be much more dramatic. Bringing out texture is much easier in black and white photography. Learning to shoot well in black and white will make you a better photographer when shooting in color. Shooting black and white makes you focus more on the composition. Color will not distract from the creativity or the emotion of the shot. You can create a certain mood in the shot you can't do in color. In this book I will give you tips on how to take the best black and white shots you can. I will show you how to use black and white to change the mood of the shot and create the emotion you want to portray. I have taken hundreds of thousands of photos over the past 40 years. Many have been black and white. I have studied photography in practice and photography school many years ago. Practice is the best way to learn. Learn by using your eyes and the tools you have to make the best shots you can. Take time and search black and white photos online. Look at the variety of shots. Look to see what type of look you prefer. Do you like high key, dramatic, middle shades of gray, infrared, or do you like it with a tint to the shot? Look at Ansel Adams photography. Look at other great black and white shots and see how the photographer sees the light. Look at how they compose the shot to create the shot they want. If you haven't tried black and white. Check it out and see what you can do. It's easy to make great shots if you learn what to look at.

Trash Or Treasure (Deluxe) Contraband Thevibesetter.2020-07-14 A poetic photo book by Thevibesetter. Harping off the old proverb one man's trash is another man's treasure. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder so these photos could very much so be trash or seen as art to be treasured. So here's a short story on how I went from in front of the lens to behind the lens. I'm currently a student at Miami AD School for art direction and at the end of each quarter, we have a critique panel over all the assignments we did for our classes. I had a class called Smartphonography that was about using your phone to create quality imagery. We were given various pictorial prompts for example taking portrait pics using different lighting techniques like rembrandt, edge, etc. We had to do architecture, pareidolia, and shit like that. Mind you I love being the muse and the subject in front of the camera not behind it. So I get to the panel which is comprised of seasoned marketing agency people with high end industry positions. They review my work and ask me if I'm a photographer because my visual work stood out most to them. I was surprised like huh I like being in front of the lens I just did this shit for class. So days after the critique I marinated on their feedback and thought to myself maybe I'm holding back something I should let be. So I started to explore and challenged myself to take at least 1 picture a day. Committing Tuesdays and Thursdays to learn lightroom so I can edit what I captured. I didn't want to depend on people to show up to shoot. I needed a subject I can control that will always be there so I chose trash. Trash is everywhere all I gotta do is go out and explore and find The shot. Along the way of crafting this photo series, I would show my photographer friends for feedback and it was always yo this is dope or you gotta eye bro u should take more photography classes So here I am today going PUBLIC and leaving the nest of things I was doing in secret. Trash never looked better now this book is your treasure.
