never have seen a computer. Google has been scanning books from public libraries and other sources for several years. That means you've got access to an entire library of classic literature that you can read on the computer or on a variety of mobile devices and eBook readers. Want to listen to books instead? LibriVox is home to thousands of free audiobooks, including classics and out-of-print books. If your public library has a subscription to OverDrive then you can borrow free Kindle books from your library just like how you'd check out a paper book. Use the Library Search page to find out which libraries near you offer OverDrive. Scribd offers a fascinating collection of all kinds of reading materials: presentations, textbooks, popular reading, and much more, all organized by topic. Scribd is one of the web's largest sources of published content, with literally millions of documents published every month. Want help designing a photo book? Shutterfly can create a book celebrating your children, family vacation, holiday, sports team, wedding albums and more. The eReader Cafe has listings every day for free Kindle books and a few bargain books. Daily email subscriptions and social media profiles are also available if you don't want to check their site every day. Because this site is dedicated to free books, there's none of the hassle you get with filtering out paid-for content on Amazon or Google Play Books. We also love the fact that all the site's genres are presented on the homepage, so you don't have to waste time trawling through menus. Unlike the bigger stores, Free-Ebooks.net also lets you sort results by publication date, popularity, or rating, helping you avoid the weaker titles that will inevitably find their way onto open publishing platforms (though a book has to be really quite poor to receive less than four stars). If you have an internet connection, simply go to BookYards and download educational documents, eBooks, information and content that is freely available to all. The web page is pretty simple where you can either publish books, download eBooks based on authors/categories or share links for free. You also have the option to donate, download the iBook app and visit the educational links.
