Music and Trance Gilbert Rouget.1985-12-15 Ritual trance has always been closely associated with music—but why, and how? Gilbert Rouget offers and extended analysis of music and trance, concluding that no universal law can explain the relations between music and trance; they vary greatly and depend on the system of meaning of their cultural context. Rouget rigorously examines a worldwide corpus of data from ethnographic literature, but he also draws on the Bible, his own fieldwork in West Africa, and the writings of Plato, Ghazzali, and Rousseau. To organize this immense store of information, he develops a typology of trance based on symbolism and external manifestations. He outlines the fundamental distinctions between trance and ecstasy, shamanism and spirit possession, and communal and emotional trance. Music is analyzed in terms of performers, practices, instruments, and associations with dance. Each kind of trance draws strength from music in different ways at different points in a ritual, Rouget concludes. In possession trance, music induces the adept to identify himself with his deity and allows him to express this identification through dance. Forcefully rejecting pseudo-science and reductionism, Rouget demystifies the so-called theory of the neurophysiological effects of drumming on trance. He concludes that music's physiological and emotional effects are inseparable from patterns of collective representations and behavior, and that music and trance are linked in as many ways as there are cultural structures.

The Music of the Other Laurent Aubert. 2007 The great flood of world musics into our immediate cultural environment is not a simple matter of expanding global musical exchange, but rather many complex processes such as the growth of intercontinental tourism and the development of technologies in communication. Elegantly tracing the dimensions of these new musical encounters, Laurent Aubert considers the impact of world musics on our values, our habits and our cultural practices. His discussions of key questions about our contemporary music culture widen conventional ethnomusicological perspectives to consider the nature of Western society as a 'global village' and the impact of current Western demands on the future of world musics and their practitioners.

Musiques du Maghreb Véronique Mortaigne. 2002 Maroc, Algérie, Tunisie trois pays et une myriade de cultures croisées, mélangées, brassées. Les musiques du Maghreb méritent leur pluriel. Au cours des siècles, les échanges et les influences ont généré un genre musical propre, une musique mosaïque et multiculturelle, qui raconte l'histoire. Voici un tourbillon de couleurs et de sons, traversé par des chants séculaires et, le rythme des villes hérissées d'antennes paraboliques. Arabo-andalou, raï, châabi, melhoun, chanson kabyle... Au fil des rencontres, nous faisons escale à Marrakech, Essaouira, Tunis, Oran, Alger, Tlemcen ou Constantine. Et découvrons des paysages et des hommes, des rites et des traditions, des instruments et des artistes. Un voyage musical qui s'accompagne d'un CD audio avec les voix d'Idir, Khaled, Rachid Taha, Amina, Enrico Macias, Amina Alaoui, Cheikha Rimitti et Gnawa Diffusion.
