Unashamed Christine Caine.2016-05-10 Bestselling author, speaker, and activist Christine Caine helps you overcome past guilt and live an unashamed life. Shame can take on many forms. It hides in the shadows of the most successful, confident and high-achieving woman who struggles with balancing her work and children, as well as in the heart of the broken, abused and downtrodden woman who has been told that she will never amount to anything. Shame hides in plain sight and can hold us back in ways we do not realize. But Christine Caine wants readers to know something: we can all be free. "I know. I've been there," writes Christine. "I was schooled in shame. It has been my constant companion from my very earliest memories. I see shame everywhere I look in the world, including in the church. It creeps from heart to heart, growing in shadowy places, feeding on itself so that those struggling with it are too shamed to seek help from shame itself." In Unashamed, Christine reveals the often-hidden consequences of shame—in her own life and the lives of so many Christian women—and invites you to join her in moving from a shame-filled to a shame-free life. In her passionate and candid style, Christine leads you into God's Word where you will see for yourself how to believe that God is bigger than your mistakes, your inadequacies, your past, and your limitations. He is not only more powerful than anything you've done but also stronger than anything ever done to you. You can deal with your yesterday today, so that you can move on to what God has in store for you tomorrow—a powerful purpose and destiny he wants you to fulfill. Join the journey. Lay ahold of the power of Jesus Christ today and step into the future—his future for you—a beautiful, full, life-giving future, where you can even become a shame-lifter to others. Live unashamed! Dive deeper into the Unashamed message with the Unashamed video study and study guide. Available now.

Santu Mofokeng: Stories No. 1: Train Church Santu Mofokeng.2015 Over the course of a few weeks in 1986, aboard the crowded and precarious Soweto-Johannesburg train he took to and from his job as a darkroom printer, Santu Mofokeng photo - graphed a ritual he witnessed daily. His fellow commuters, working-class residents from the surrounding townships, would spontaneously begin to sing. Bible-wielding preachers would sermonize, prayers would be uttered, and murmurs would gradually build into a raucous chorus replete with clapping, bell-ringing, dancing, and improvised drums. These pictures capture two of the most significant features of South African life, Mofokeng says, the experience of commuting (migrancy) and the pervasiveness of spirituality. The first of a defining series of photo-essays by Mofokeng that Steidl will release in the coming years, Train Church is the photographer's earliest long-form story—newly revised and expanded, and brought palpably to life in an oversize format. —Foot stomping and gyrating—a packed train is turned into a church. Written Out Joel Cabrita. 2023-01-17 Systemic racism and sexism caused one of South Africa's most important writers to disappear from public consciousness. Is it possible to justly restore her historical presence? Regina Gelana Twala, a Black South African woman who died in 1968 in Swaziland (now Eswatini), was an extraordinarily prolific writer of books, columns, articles, and letters. Yet today Twala's name is largely unknown. Her literary achievements are forgotten. Her books are unpublished. Her letters languish in the dusty study of a deceased South African academic. Her articles are buried in discontinued publications. Joel Cabrita argues that Twala's posthumous obscurity has not developed accidentally as she exposes the ways prejudices around race and gender blocked Black African women like Twala from establishing themselves as successful writers. Drawing upon Twala's family papers, interviews, newspapers, and archival records from Pretoria, Uppsala, and Los Angeles, Cabrita argues that an entire cast of characters—censorious editors, territorial White academics, apartheid officials, and male African politicians whose politics were at odds with her own—conspired to erase Twala's legacy. Through her unique documentary output, Twala marked herself as a radical voice on issues of gender, race, and class. The literary gatekeepers of the racist and sexist society of twentieth-century southern Africa clamped down by literally writing her out of the region's history. Written Out also scrutinizes the troubled racial politics of African history as a discipline that has been historically dominated by White academics, a situation that many people within the field are now examining critically. Inspired by this recent movement, Cabrita interrogates what it means for her—a White historian based in the Northern Hemisphere—to tell the story of a Black African woman. Far from a laudable “recovery” of an important lost figure, Cabrita acknowledges that her biography inevitably reproduces old dynamics of White scholarly privilege and dominance. Cabrita's narration of Twala's career resurrects it but also reminds us that Twala, tragically, is still not the author of her own life story.

The Facilitator Era Tom Steffen. 2011-01-01 Some time ago, Ralph Winter brilliantly identified three eras of modern missions: Era 1: William Carey focused on the coastlands; Era 2: Hudson Taylor focused on the inlands; Era 3: Donald McGavran and Cameron Townsend focused on unreached peoples. With all the fast and furious changes swirling around us today in twenty-first century missions, have we entered a Fourth Era? If so, who are the people primarily involved? How are they selected? How are they trained? How long do they serve? Has the Third Era ministry focus—reaching the unreached—changed? If so, to what? Are there any successful case studies out there? Have McGavran and Townsend passed the baton to a new leader(s)? If so, to whom? This book seeks to answer these and related questions. Am I Called? (Foreword by Matt Chandler) Dave Harvey. 2012-03-31 Many men have the skills to lead a church, but only some are called. Dave Harvey helps men considering pastoral ministry to see God's active role in the process of discerning their calling. God's Word offers a clear framework for evaluating one's call, especially within the context of community. Harvey offers six diagnostic questions to help prospective pastors process their calling, and what they should be doing now if they aren't sure. Illustrated with personal and historical stories, Harvey explores biblical and practical principles for determining the pastoral call. Over the past twenty-four years of ministry, Harvey has enjoyed assisting many men in discerning whether they are called into ministry. This book will guide you through that all-important process with wisdom and confidence in God's faithfulness in your life.

Organic Outreach for Churches Kevin G. Harney.2018-05-22 Nearly all churches and ministries consider themselves dedicated to evangelism, and many explicitly include outreach in their mission statements. But few are actually bearing fruit. Kevin Harney diagnoses this problem and offers guidance for multiplying the outreach impact of churches. Organic Outreach for Churches provides direction for local congregations to weave evangelism into the fabric of the church. Commitment to the Great Commission is not simply about sending money and prayers to missions or holding occasional events to reach out (although these things are good). Organic outreach happens when evangelistic vision and action become the domain of every ministry and the commitment of every person in the congregation. This will not happen accidentally. There is huge spiritual and practical resistance to such changes. But the only way evangelism will become an organic part of a church is when every leader and each member is gripped by a commitment to proclaiming the gospel. This book is a roadmap for pastors and leaders who wish to infuse evangelistic passion into every aspect of their church's life.

Poor As Church Mice Roselyn Miller.2006-08-01 When I began work on my historical novel, The Rape of Midian: The Saga of Zipporah and Moses, several of my friends and relatives asked what motivated me to write a story about the exodus from the perspective of Zipporah, the Midianite wife of Moses. The simple answer is that from my research I discovered in the Bible's books of Exodus and Numbers traces of an interfaith love story that was compromised by political intrigue and ethnic conflicts. It concerned me that for more than two thousand years the vast majority of religious leaders have effectively censored the story by their silence. I felt the time had come to bring this story out of the closet and, as the African-American spiritual says, go tell it on the mountain. During his years of exile from Egypt, Moses marries Zipporah, the oldest daughter of Jethro, the Priest of Midian. After Moses is called by his God to be the leader of the Hebrews, he returns to Egypt with his wife and children. Moses' free-spirited young wife finds herself caught up in an intricate web of sexual abuse, political intrigue, and homophobia. As a woman in a male-dominated society, Zipporah struggles against forces that seek to destroy her marriage and her people. Battling against insurmountable odds, she anchors herself in the deep spiritual values she embodies. Betrayed, abused and discarded, she fights tenaciously for survival as Moses relentlessly executes the mandate of his God. Thomas B. Hargrave, Jr. 2001

Jumping the Train Dina V Avery.2019-08 The patriarch of the village of Rushing Spring and Ketona requested that their oral history not come to an end when he is sleeping in his grave. Although these are two separate communities, adjacent to each other, those from here consider it to be one village due to their kinship, love, and challenges they have overcome together. As the patriarch recalls, he shares poignant details, regarding three run-away slaves. Two of them being young boys, who were kept as slaves even after slavery ended, but found a way to escape. Their descendants became Vietnam and Civil Rights heroes. After the patriarch's death, his granddaughter meets face-to-face with the slave masters' descendants and their story does not continue with horror and hate, despite their differences. Note, slave master is plural because their family was passed around throughout the same family for way over a century. Despite prolonged oppression, this village rises above it with no hate. This extraordinary, true story, Jumping the Train demonstrates how wonderful, the world could be if human beings could co-exist together with more love.

Saints, Stories & Sources Aspen Grove Books.2016-01-06 Warren Foote was an early convert to Mormonism and became an influential figure in the various communities where he lived. He was captain of a Pioneer wagon train, settler of the communities of Union, Scipio, and Glendale in Utah, and St. Joseph and St. Thomas in the Muddy Mission in Nevada. He was a polygamist, though there was considerable difficulty in his marriage and living arrangements, and eventually his second wife left him. He farmed and pioneered and was a trained miller and woodworker. He was also an ardent supporter and defender of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. This book includes the first volume of Warren Foote's personal journals and memoir, spanning from his birth in 1817 to the end of 1879. Several additional sources and documents are included as well. This version features thousands of changes and improvements from previous editions of the Warren Foote Journals, including increased readability, improved formatting, standardized spelling and punctuation, and other efforts to provide a more enjoyable read without affecting historical accuracy. This book will be a great resource to students and scholars of Utah, Mormon, Western, or Pioneering history. It will also be of interest to the many thousands of descendants of Warren Foote.

Behind the Red Doors Volume 1 The First Presbyterian Church.2017-10-19 Everyone has a story. Stories act like bridges that connect us to one another. This is a book of stories of how God's amazing grace shaped the hearts and lives of the people connected to the First Presbyterian Church in Jackson, MO. We like to say we're the church with the red doors and the warm hearts. In reality, we like to say we're a congregation that gathers to experience God's unconditional love, sharing it with others to make a difference in their lives. No doubt you'll find a connection to your own life in these stories. Some of these stories reveal how God works in mysterious ways, often quietly as if God refused to take credit. Other stories share the bold reality that God is still in the business of providing miracles. Join us on this journey as we recount the many ways we've encountered God's love, and how God is still a very present help in times of trouble. Edited by the pastor, Rev. Grant F. C. Gillard.

The Black Photo Album Santu Mofokeng,James T. Campbell.2013 ...with the so-called civilised workers, almost without exception their civilisation was only skin deep. O. Pirow, quoting South African Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog For this book Santu Mofokeng collected private photographs which urban black working and middle-class families in South Africa commissioned between 1890 and 1950, a time when the government was creating policies towards those designated as natives. Painterly in style, the images evoke the artifices of Victorian photography. Some of them are fiction, a creation of the artist in terms of setting, props, clothing and pose - yet there is no evidence of coercion. We believe these images, as they reveal something about how these people imagined themselves. In this work Mofokeng analyses the sensibilities, aspirations and self-image of the black population and its desire for representation and social recognition in times of colonial rule and suppression. The Black Photo Album / Look at Me: 1890-1950 is drawn from an ongoing research project of the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg.
