The Planetary Ennead Sam Bartle.2023-03-30 'The Planetary Ennead' is a group of nine poems, penned in homage to our solar family of planets, including our own home planet of Earth and the dwarf planet, Pluto. Written by poet, Sam Bartle, the poems deal with each of the planets in turn, comprising Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and the affectionate inclusion of Pluto (despite it no longer being classified as a technical 'planet'). Anyone who shares a fascination with the stars, space, astronomy, and the wider Cosmos, will enjoy the author's poetic interpretations of our solar neighbourhood within this collection. (The publication of this second edition was prompted by the revelation of Neptune's true colour on 5th February 2024, which confirmed that it is actually an extremely pale shade of blue. As a result, both the poem and image for Neptune have been updated).

The Day the Universe Exploded My Head Allan Wolf.2019-03-05 Hang on tight for a raucous bounce through the solar system and back — propelled by funny, fanciful, factually sound poems and exuberant illustrations. The universe poured into me. My brain was overloaded. It smoked and glowed red-hot. And then it actually exploded. Ever wonder what the sun has to say about being the closest star to Earth? Or what Pluto has gotten up to since being demoted to a dwarf planet? Or where rocket ships go when they retire? Listen closely, because maybe, just maybe, your head will explode, too. With poetry that is equal parts accurate and entertaining — and illustrations that are positively out of this world — this book will enthrall amateur stargazers and budding astrophysicists as it reveals many of the wonders our universe holds. Space travelers in search of more information will find notes about the poems, a glossary, and a list of resources at the end.

Temporary Planets for Transitory Days Albert Wendland.2020-06-27 Mykol Ranglen, the space explorer from In a Suspect Universe and The Man Who Loved Alien Landscapes, has always written poetry-about his adventures, the worlds he's visited, the people he's loved, the ancient races that warred in his galaxy. His most private poems he's kept to himself. But they are published here for the first time-and they show a man we've never met before. Discover the fascination of what Ranglen has lived: mysteries of the planet Alchera, dreams of Old Earth, secrets and mistakes of the alien Airafane and their enemies the Moyocks, relationships that still haunt him (past lovers, and an unknown child), hints of a strange Deep Story-litanies of worlds, legends of space, triumphs, sorrows, regrets, joys, and the sheer wonder and terror of his universe. All in his words.

Good Enough To Eat: A Collection of Poems for Children Robert Atkinson. 2015-04-08 Good Enough to Eat is an entertaining, educational tool for children, parents, and teachers alike. Longtime elementary school teacher Robert Atkinson uses his vast experience teaching English to share his love of poetry. There are several sections, each delineated by poetic form, ranging from haiku to limerick, couplet to sonnet. At the beginning of each section, Robert defines the poetic form and makes it easy for a child to understand. Following the description are several funny and true-to-life poems penned by the author, accompanied by beautiful images that will engage even the youngest audience while imparting important writing techniques. Teachers can use this collection in the classroom, and students can use it at home as they create their own pieces of literary artwork. Beyond the valuable educational aspect, though, Robert wrote each poem to entertain young ones and make the written word into a family affair. Ready, set ... get your pen and paper and go!

Blast Off! Lee Bennett Hopkins. 1995-01 A collection of poems about the moon, stars, planets, astronauts, and related wonders.

Children of the Sun Kabir Gupta, Arjun Gupta. 2017-11-20 Designed to introduce children to the solar system, this book attempts to teach facts about the planets around our sun, from Saturn's Rings to Jupiter's Great Red Spot. However, in this case the story goes a step further. What if... every planet wasn't just a sphere of rock or gas? If they each had personalities, what would they be like? Here is one artist's attempt to represent their unique personalities, each with his or her own distinctive qualities and behaviors, through The Children of the Sun. We hope that you may enjoy this poem, written and illustrated by children.

Out of This World Amy E. Sklansky. 2012 Offers lyrically presented facts about space and with perspective illustrations and additional explanations in the margins.

Some Planet John Mortara. 2015 Poetry. After John puts us through the paces with experiments and games, throws us talismans of rose quartz and 'tired-sick teeth,' we return to the beginning--or, more appropriately, a beginning, with the final poem, 'how to start.' Again, as with the cosmos, we begin 'in the dark.' We begin with a meditation, a poem to speak aloud to ourselves. We start with our eyes closed, and then we open them, and then we read.--Carolyn DeCarlo some planet is a tiny cosmos in fevered conversation with itself. some planet is what it's like to recover from your own self. some planet is what it's like to be a human. existing in one's mind, in one's body, in one's world, in one's galaxy, all tiny universes inside tiny universes all locked in fevered conversation. some planet is the coin in your pocket when you don't know how to choose. some planet is when everything is both itself and simultaneously else. some planet is a house covered in overgrowth on the outside, plastered with memory and story on the inside. John Mortara is leading you through the woods by the hand. Trying to get you home safe before sun goes down.

Genesis Frederick Turner.2011 Originally published in 1988, Genesis was the first major work of fiction that addressed the idea of terraforming Mars. It not only suggested the idea, but provided a feasible solution for doing so. During its initial publication, Genesis was on the list of recommended reading at NASA, and has since gone on to enjoy cult status. Its acknowledged list of admirers includes such literary luminaries as Brian Aldiss, Amy Clampitt, Arthur C. Clarke, Thomas M. Disch, Kim Stanley Robinson, and Pulitzer Prize winning poet, James Merrill. It is with great pride that Ilium Press brings this influential and prescient work back into print.

Shrunken Planets Robert Louthan.1980 Robert Louthan's poems are simple and strange. They speak the plain speech of dreams, and are quietly but firmly committed to that kind of order. John Ashbery Anyone can be original. What is far more important is writing that strikes to a depth of the psyche. For an image to affect us, Magritte has said, there must be affinities between the objects represented by the image. The poems of Robert Louthan reveal these affinities evidence of a world that exists all around us, if we have eyes to see it. To read Shrunken Planets is a fascinating and unforgettable experience. Stacey Schuett brings it all to life with color-soaked skies and beautiful perspectives in her fabulous paintings. Space is a subject too grand for poetry or prose alone, so this book offers both to help readers truly appreciate our place in space.
